MEDITERRANEAN WAR SPEEDS UP

SPECULATE ON FDR ACTS TO HALT STRIKES

Washington Eyes President as 52,800 Workers Are Idle on Defense Jobs.

COAL PROPOSAL MADE

Mediation Board Suspends Efforts To Settle Aviation Tie-Up.

(By Associated Press)

Speculation whether President Roosevelt would move to reinforce his injunction against the stalling of preparedness machinery by strikes grew apace in Washington today as 52,800 defense workers stood idle in labor dispute.

Despite a flurry of legislative proposals for curbing strikes, most eyes turned to the White House in conjecture whether the "unlimited emergency" powers of the president might be invoked to keep strategic plants open.

Queries prompted by the shutdown of North American Aviation company in California yesterday, while the dispute was still before the defense mediation board, brought no indication of executive action, however.

Stephen Early, presidential secretary, said Mr. Roosevelt had not been officially notified of the aircraft shutdown, nor had he been apprised of the open defiance of the board's recommendations voiced by O. M. Orton, president of 12,000 striking members of the International Woodworkers of America in the Pacific northwest.

The board has no power to back up its recommendations, though President Roosevelt has declared labor and industry must respect its findings.

The mediation board meanwhile took these major steps yesterday:

Delivered to the southern soft coal industry a recommended new contract embodying the uniform $7 daily wage and 10-day paid vacation demands of the CIO United Mine Workers, and called for acceptance or rejection by 6 p. m. Monday.

Handed back to 12,000 striking CIO Woodsmen for reconsideration the board's twice-rejected formula for peace in more than 50 Douglas Fir operations in the Pacific northwest.

Suspended for the time being its efforts to mediate the day-old strike of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) at North American Aviation corp., so that union chiefs could return to Inglewood, Calif., and consult with local unionists on the stoppage of work on $196,000,000 in warplane orders.

Italian Bombs Hit Gibraltar, Reports Say

Germans Forecast Aerial Attacks on Suez Canal; Attempt to Bottle Up British Fleet Seen In Attack On Sea's Key Defenses.

BULLETIN

CAIRO, Egypt—(AP)—British bombers attacked Italian aircraft on the airdrome at Aleppo, in northern Syria, yesterday, destroying one craft by direct hits, the RAF Middle East command announced today. Today's war bulletin said hits were also registered on hangars and runways.

(By Associated Press)

Italian bombers were reported today to have attacked Britain's great rock citadel of Gibraltar, guarding the western entrance of the Mediterranean sea, while the Germans forecast aerial blows at the Suez canal in the east.

Linked with Wednesday night's heavy assault on the main British naval base at Alexandria these reports indicated that an Axis campaign to bottle up the British Mediterranean fleet may already be in motion.

London radio said casualties at Alexandria numbered 150 killed and 200 wounded.

Meanwhile, France's high military chieftains, in a cabinet session at Vichy, were reported discussing U. S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull's blunt warning that French cooperation with Germany was "utterly inimical to the just rights of other countries."

With Vice Premier Admiral Jean Darlan presiding, the meeting was attended by Generalissimo Maxime Weygand, commander-in-chief of France's North African armies; Governor General Pierre Boisson of French West Africa, and Resident General Admiral Jean Esteva of Tunisia.

The question of empire defense as part of Adolf Hitler's new European order was also said to have been discussed.

Giving point to these deliberations, General Henri Dentz, commander-in-chief of French forces in Syria and Lebanon, issued a dramatic order to his troops:

"The command is clear. Defend our possessions and defend them

PROPAGANDA: FR Says Peace Rumors Fabricated By Nazis

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt today said that peace rumors circulating in the capital were fabricated from Nazi falsehoods.

The president said many Americans were being made the dupes of German propaganda.

Mr. Roosevelt declared that Britain is far from collapse, and that no peace proposals were brought back from London by Ambassador John G. Winant.

Declaring he was not making a denial of peace reports but an accusation that Americans were being duped, the president said of the peace rumors:—

There has been "absolutely nothing like it—not even a tenth cousin of a peace offer or anything like that or any discussion of peace. Absolutely nothing like it—provided you use this not as a denial by the president but as an accusation by the president."

Mr. Roosevelt accused Nazi and Fascist sympathizers and appeasers in this country either of operating on direct orders from Berlin to spread such peace rumors or of acting as dupes to spread such rumors.

Gas Contract Expires, Renewal Under Study

With the domestic electric rate problem solved by emergency passage of a five-year contract ordinance, city council today was faced with the problem of providing for a gas ordinance to replace the present three-year contract which expires tomorrow.

Russell D. Porch, chairman of council's utilities committee, said that the committee was considering the gas ordinance and that action would be taken soon. Porch said there was no need for immediate action because the present rates had been maintained for the past three years although the ordinance was never formally approved by the Ohio Fuel Gas company.

The chairman stated, however, that efforts would be made to get Mansfield consumers the lowest possible rate. Council passed an ordinance on June 7, 1938, extending for three years the rates in effect since 1935.

Porch stated that the utilities committee would meet next week and would investigate the possibility of lower rates.

Fred Miller, member of the utilities committee, was definite in his demand for a lower gas rate.

"I feel that the city's consumers should be given a lower rate," said Miller. "In any event, the committee will try its hardest to secure one. We will not stand for any move for an increase."

"In view of the action of other utilities throughout the country," said Porch, "it seems that a reduction should be given in Mans-

SIGNS BILL

FDR Authorizes Requisition of Foreign Ships.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— President Roosevelt today signed a bill authorizing requisition of all immobilized foreign ships in American harbors and by executive order empowered the maritime commission to take over the vessels.

More than 100 foreign ships, including Danish, Italian, and German ships which were placed under "protective custody" several weeks ago, would be affected by the order. The order applied to all foreign merchant vessels lying idle in U. S. waters, the Philippine Islands and the Canal Zone.

American crews have been prepared for several days to take charge of many of these ships, according to maritime circles.

WORKER KILLED

Jeromesville Man Electrocuted In Ashland Plant Mishap.

ASHLAND—Walter Bittle, 37, of Jeromesville was electrocuted at 7:30 a. m. today when he touched an electric wire and was thrown into a pit, landing on a wire mesh carrying 2300 volts.

Bittle had been unloading sand at the Rybolt Heater company and it was believed he touched the wire to steady himself as he stepped to the roof of a small building. Ashland firemen removed his body from the pit.

He was born Feb. 22, 1904, in Holmes county and moved to Ashland last December from Glenmont in Holmes county.

He is survived by his widow (Gladys Browand) whom he married in 1928 at Millersburg, and six small children, Betty, Walter jr., Beulahmae, Harold, Dean and Edna; three brothers, Floyd Henry, Massillon; George, Wooster; Russell, Jeromesville, and three sisters, Mrs. Bida Mast, Berlin; Mrs. Mina Yoder, Sugar Creek; Mrs. Violet Frost, Benton.

Private funeral services will be held Sunday at 2 p. m. at the home of his brother-in-law, Ralph Brown in Hayesville.

Oberlin Campus Workers Reject AFL, CIO as Bargainers.

OBERLIN —(AP)— Building service employes of Oberlin college won't want the AFL or CIO as bargaining agencies.

Results of the election held yesterday showed 19 for the AFL, 65 for the CIO, and 111 for neither group. Only one of the school's 196 campus workers failed to vote and he was in California on vacation.

LOCKE DECIDES TO RUN AGAIN

Mayor Announces Petitions Being Circulated; Denies Quarrel With Director.

Apparently changing his stand of yesterday, when he said there was no need to hurry to announce his second term intentions, Mayor William J. Locke today announced he had placed petitions in circulation for re-nomination.

At the same time, he again scoffed at reports that he had quarrelled with C. M. Crafton, his service-safety director, and said that they probably originated as a "dastardly" effort by opposition to weaken the administration.

The mayor said that he had withheld his decision to this late date, only a week before the filing deadline, to learn the "sentiment of the people" and to allow other possible candidates to declare their intentions. No one else in either party has announced as yet.

Although the mayor said yes-

Adapt Selves to World Changes, Seniors Told

By ROBERT HUFFMAN

Resilience and adaptability to the changing forces of the world were recommended by Harlan H. Hatcher, Ohio State university professor, to 282 Mansfield Senior high students in the commencement address at outdoor graduation exercises last night at Stadium field.

Approximately 2,500 parents and friends heard Hatcher's talk and saw the 150 girls and 132 boys in the class receive their diplomas against the constantly changing background of dusk.

The speakers' stand, decorated with flowers and flanked by the American and school flags, was on the stadium turf facing the west stands. This and the grey-robed graduates, massed in front of the multicolored stadium crowd, presented an unusual spectacle.

Hatcher, who was introduced by Supt. W. L. Miller, pointed out that the present crisis is not a new thing in the annals of Ohio, since history reveals that there have been recurring crises since the first settlers pushed west after the Revolution. Hatcher's topic was "Ohio Faces the Future."

"Many graduates have left school with the words of commencement speakers in their minds, assured that the world was in a bad way.

"There is no doubt that the world is in a bad way, but don't let that stop you," he admonished the class.

"Remember that the settlers of Crossing Guard Rescues Girl From In Front of Truck.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Quick-thinking and fast action on the part of a 44-year-old negro school-crossing guard today was credited with saving Clara Oravec, six, from injury and possible death.

Noticing a huge truck starting to move against a red light, and bearing down on a group of children, the guard, Brutus Walker, plunged in front of the vehicle, scooped up Clara who was directly in the truck's path and dove to the safety of the curb.

Leaping to his feet Walker jumped into a passing sedan, pursued the truck and finally forced it to the curb. The driver of the truck was charged with driving while intoxicated and without a driver's license. Walker suffered cuts on his hand during the rescue.

REPLY: Dutch Answer Jap Demands for Rubber, Oil, Tin

BULLETIN

TOKYO—(INS)—Dissatisfaction with the nature of the Netherlands East Indies' reply to Japanese trade proposals was expressed today by Kenkichi Yoshizawa, chief Japanese negotiator.

(By Associated Press)

BATAVIA, Netherlands East Indies—H. J. Van Mook, chief Dutch negotiator in trade talks with Japan, delivered the Dutch reply to the Japanese today on Japan's demands for such war-important materials as rubber, oil and tin, the Dutch news agency, Aneta, reported.

Van Mook and his aids were closeted for an hour and a half with the Japanese delegation headed by Kenkichi Yoshizawa.

Van Mook then accompanied Yoshizawa to his automobile, telling newspaper men, "there is nothing yet to be said."

Yoshizawa had said in advance that if the reply failed to meet the Japanese economic demands, it would be refused—and Dutch sources indicated that the demands would not be met in any large measure.

Japan has been negotiating for almost a year for a large share of the vital trade of the Indies, per-

Would Alter 'Draft Property' Bill to Seize Struck Plants

CHICAGO — Officers of three farm organizations, saying they spoke for 3,000,000 farm people in 48 states, urged today that "all unwarranted profits of industry, labor and agriculture should be recaptured by appropriate taxation to help pay the cost of the defense program."

The statement of public policy was drafted by delegates of the American Farm Bureau federation, the National Grange and the National Council of Farmers cooperatives after a two-day meeting.

"This is no time for any group, whether in industry, labor or agriculture to seek a selfish advantage," the statement said.

The spokesmen urged that as far as practicable the cost of the defense program be paid from current income "to prevent dangerous inflation and an undue accumulation of debts."

"True patriotism," the statement read, "and the security of all demand that all groups should contribute their utmost to produce everything essential to national defense with maximum speed and efficiency.

"Adequate defense requires that there be no stoppage or delay in production and distribution of essential materials or services in industry or agriculture. National safety demands that immediate action be taken to provide adequate means for continuing operations whenever disputes arise, until differences are composed."

The emergency, the statement said, requires that personal and group selfishness be subordinated to the common good.

Ground-Breaking Ceremony Planned for 30-N Projects

A brief ceremony Monday will mark the start of work on the $500,000 grade elimination project on U. S. Route 30-N at the Erie and Baltimore and Ohio railroads west of the city, Vance Grimes, Ashland division engineer of the state highway department, said today.

Grimes said city and county highway department representatives and Mansfield civic leaders would be invited to attend the ceremony at the scene of the project. Plans for the program are still incomplete, he said.

Contract for the work was awarded to the Lombardo Construction company, Cleveland on its bid of $497,552. Right-of-way costs and incidental expenses are expected to boost the total cost well over the half-million mark.

Contract plans call for an overhead project at the Baltimore and Ohio tracks just outside the city limits and a subway at the Erie railroad west of the city.

Two suits involving claims for damages and appropriation of property for the right-of-way which are pending in Richland county common pleas court must be decided before work can be completed throughout the length of the project, highway officials said.

CALL: France Asks Defense Of Syria, Ponders Hull Words

(By Associated Press)

VICHY, Unoccupied France—The France of Marshal Petain called on its loyal forces for a stern defense of Syria against any British move while pondering today Secretary Hull's declaration that co-operation with Germany would be considered "utterly inimical to the just rights of other countries."

Official reaction to the American secretary of state's statement of yesterday did not immediately materialize but Vichy chieftain for Africa, including General Maxime Weygand, participated in a cabinet meeting where it was supposed Hull's utterances were discussed.

Unofficially, the French insisted that collaboration with Germany was not, as Hull expressed fear it was, "for the purpose of aggression and oppression." Unofficial sources said the collaboration was purely economic and political to restore France to a normal place in a reorganized Europe after the war.

General Henri Dentz, commander in chief of the French forces in the Levant—Syria—calling on his men for an unbudging defense denied anew in a broadcast last night that France was surrendering rule of Syria and that German forces were landing at Latakia, relieving French troops.

MEDITERRANEAN WAR SPEEDS UP IN NEW ATTACK

Italians Reported To Have Bombed Gibraltar, Nazis Forecast Suez Assault.

with our own forces.

"There is nothing in this contrary to the honor and interests of France. You have heard me. You have understood it. I say no more. Now to your posts!"

Amid indications that British troops might move into Syria at any moment, NBC's correspondent in Ankara, Turkey, said German soldiers were reported to have occupied Damascus, the capital of Syria, only 60 miles from British-ruled Trans-Jordan.

Both the French and Germans have emphatically denied the presence of Nazi troops in Syria. The German radio broadcast a report from Beirut that British forces were preparing to land on the north Syrian coast and also to attack from Palestine and Trans-Jordan.

Berlin radio broadcast a report that British bombers attacked a French troop camp in southern Lebanon and met anti-aircraft fire.

In London, the press warned that Britain's position in the Middle East was grave. Once more a clamor was made for decisive action to beat Hitler's blitz legions to the punch.

Britain's former war secretary, Leslie Hore-Belisha, in a speech bitterly assailing Prime Minister Churchill's conduct of the war, told an audience in Edinburgh, Scotland:

"We must win this war and we will back any government that will go all out to win it. We must realize, however, that you cannot win a 1941 war at a 1914 pace.

"We suffer defeat after defeat, and always for the same reason—lack of appreciation, lack of preparation and imperfect execution of the project. Each reverse is glossed over. . . . and the narcotic of false confidence in the future is invariably applied."

Hore-Belisha proposed recognition of common citizenship by Great Britain and the United States as the "most hopeful assurance of the determination of the democracies to establish a new order."

In the western hemisphere, Argentina invited the military leaders of seven American nations, including the United States, to tour her defense establishments, indicating thereby that she had abandoned her luke-warm attitude toward intercontinental defense.

Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Paraguay, Peru, Uruguay and the United States were asked to send delegations, headed if possible by their war ministers, on July 9, when Argentina celebrates the 125th anniversary of her independence from Spain.

In the western war, London had its first daylight air-raid alarm since April 22. It lasted half an hour, while a small formation of Nazi planes flew over, wheeled and returned south. There were no reports that bombs had been dropped.

German aerial activity last night was confined to a light raid by a few planes on parts of Scotland.

Report Nazi Airmen On Syrian Airfields

ANKARA, Turkey —(U.P.)— German air force men are occupying three of the chief airports of Syria—at Damascus, Aleppo and Palmyra—and French authorities are taking stern measures to suppress pro-British activity, diplomatic and private reports said today.

Reliable diplomatic informants said that the Germans occupied Damascus airport after having occupied the other two, and that they were maintaining a shuttle plane service between the Italian Dodecanese islands and Syria to transport war materials and soldiers disguised as civilians.

Alleged German civilians also continued to enter Syria through Turkey, informants said. Syrian authorities were said to be fortifying the Syrian frontier opposite Palestine and Iraq.

Travelers who reached Istanbul from Syria said that hundreds of officers in the French army in Syria had been arrested or put under observation, and that the number of secret agents among army units had been increased.

Nazis Claim Three Ships Are Sunk

BERLIN — (INS) — The high command announced today that German planes last night sank three convoyed merchant vessels of 10,000, 5,000, and 800 tons.

Four other vessels totalling 15,000 tons were claimed to have been severely damaged. The attacks took place off the east coast of Scotland.

Wolford, 824 Park avenue west, received his degree of doctor of medicine today at graduation exercises at the Jefferson Medical school in Philadelphia. He was graduated from Wittenberg college at Springfield four years ago and then entered medical school. Following his graduation he will be an interne at Cleveland City hospital for the next two years. Dr. and Mrs. Wolford and their son, Thomas, were in Philadelphia today to attend commencement exercises. They will go to Springfield Monday for exercises at Wittenberg college where another son, Richard, will receive his diploma.

FORMER SHELBY RESIDENT DIES

GAS CONTRACT EXPIRES, CITY TAKES UP STUDY

Council Committee Mapping Action; Probe Possibility of Lower Rates.

field. We will investigate every possibility of such a reduction."

William C. Mead, district manager of the gas company, said today that his company had not considered the problem as yet and had prepared no proposal for changes in the rate structure.

At present, the gas rates call for the following schedule:

First 500 cu. ft., $1.

Each 1,000 cu. ft. over 500, 50c.

City Solicitor M. D. Ward, jr., has been asked to prepare a copy of the present ordinance for consideration by council, Porch said, explaining that the ordinance, however, will omit the rate schedule.

Meanwhile, the possibility of reduced gas rates to northern Ohio communities, including Akron and Cleveland, appeared as the result of federal power commission engineers.

The commission has been considering reductions in the wholesale rates charged by the Hope Natural Gas company of West Virginia to the East Ohio Gas company, which serves Cleveland.

According to the Associated Press, Milton Springer, counsel for the commission, submitted an engineers' report which Spencer Reeder, counsel for the city of Cleveland, said justified a reduction of 5 cents in the average wholesale rate of 36½ cents a thousand cubic feet for gas sold to the East Ohio Gas company.

This revision, said Reeder, would result in a reduction of at least 5.4 cents for domestic and commercial consumers in Cleveland. He added that proportionate savings would be effected in other cities served by East Ohio.

Springer said engineers' studies showed that the Hope company had an 11½ per cent rate of return on investment during the past four years. He suggested that this was sharply higher than average and that there would be adjustments.

Years ago, in rate arguments before the public utilities commission concerning the Logan Gas company, predecessor of Ohio Fuel, the rate charged by the United Fuel Gas company of West Virginia was a point in the argument of the cities for reduction.

Ohio Fuel buys gas at the Ohio river gate from United Fuel. Attorneys for the cities argued that the price charged by United was excessive, but under existing laws, the Ohio public utilities commission had no right to investigate United Fuel rates, or to pass on its prices.

Subsequently, congress empowered the federal power commission to investigate such rates and determine their fairness.

Tells Graduates to Adapt Selves to Changing World

Ohio built first a church and school.

"For 150 years Ohioans have been building a tradition that is a way of life, that is a pattern of civilization, and is a hope for the future.

"And Ohioans have always looked to the future and they were not afraid. There is a parallel between those pioneers who preceded us and the present day.

"There have been those who said that 'it couldn't be done,'" Hatcher said. He was referring to the canals and national road projects which were begun in 1825, and he added, "Ohioans did it anyhow."

There have been many parallels between this graduation class and others that have gone before, Hatcher pointed out. Recalling that he had graduated from college 22 years ago, he stated that in those 22 years he had seen, as a mature man, the first World war, the greatest depression and boom that the world had ever known, and was now engaged in another and even greater World war.

"Your contemporaries in many parts of the world have been trained for destruction. But it will be the problem of you young people to use a perfected economic and industrial organization for other purposes," he said.

"It will be your place to make things for use other than destruction; to be creative and give of yourselves and take a constructive place in the community."

The graduation class marched into the stadium from the school to the strains of "The Coronation March" from "The Prophet" by Meyerbeer, played by the All-School Symphony orchestra directed by Sigurd Jorgensen.

The invocation was given by Rev. H. E. Tropf, pastor of Gospel Tabernacle.

Richard Burkholder, class president, gave the salutation. At this time the class, acting as a unit, moved the tassel of their graduation caps from left to right, symbolizing their new stature as graduates.

The commencement exercises signaled the end of 13 years of service as principal for Jesse Beer, who presented the class for graduation. Beer, who is retiring from active leadership of the school, will remain as a teacher.

Alvin Fankhauser, member of the board of education presented the diplomas to the class.

Other music during the program included the class song, composed by Ann Jeannette Klinger. A quartet composed of Paul Tropf, Robert Early, Albert Young, and Richard Hamilton lead the class in song.

Robert Early, soloist, accompanied by the orchestra sang "Song of the Evening Star" from "Tannhauser."

Rev. Tropf gave the benediction following which the class, led by standard bearers with the American and school flags, marched from their places as the orchestra played the recessional.

It added that the Japanese government might then take up its demands direct with the Netherlands government in exile at London.

WATCH FOR FDR STRIKE ACTION

Washington Eyes White House as 52,800 Workers Are Idle on Defense Jobs.

the CIO sent a strongly worded personal message to the Puget Sound lumber strikers last night urging acceptance of the mediation board peace formula and castigating their union leaders.

The board's effort to avoid a repetition of the April soft coal strike took the form of a recommendation to eliminate the 40-cent differential in wages paid by southern operators under the northern scale.

A uniform $7 level throughout the seven-state Appalachian fields would not work undue hardship on southern mines which have been paying $6.60, the board held. Conceding the 40 cent raise would boost production costs 3½ cents a ton, the board said this would not constitute "an unbearable competitive burden."

Officials of North American Aviation company, where 11,500 employes were rendered idle by yesterday's sudden CIO strike call, decided for the time being against any effort to keep up production, though AFL machinists had previously volunteered to man the machines.

Meanwhile Detroit faced the threat of a general strike on June 16 of 4,000 municipal workers, members of the City Employes Union (AFL) unless wage increases were forthcoming before that time.

Possibility of a deadlock in demands of railroad employes for wage increases took shape in a statement by the Western Association of Railway Executives last night that the roads could not grant the "unreasonable demands" because they involved about $750,000,000 while the carriers' net income last year totaled $191,000,000.

Fourteen non-operating railway labor organizations have proposed pay raises of 30 to 34 cents a hour for their 800,000 members. Five operating unions, composed of engineers, firemen, conductors, switchmen, and trainmen, voted May 19 to seek 30 per cent increases for their 350,000 members.

Demands of both groups will be presented to the railroads June 10.

Ravenna Workers Told More Trouble Will End Project.

RAVENNA—(AP)—Seven thousand laborers at the huge Ravenna arsenal, given a pay increase from 65 to 70 cents an hour, were admonished today that further labor trouble would bring abandonment of the project.

S. E. Hunkin of the Hunkin-Conkey Construction company, said the increase, retroactive to May 26, followed Washington conferences with government and AFL officials.

The union had demanded a 90-cent rate in negotiations following a recent four-day strike, termed "unauthorized" by a spokesman of the Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers local. Hunkin said laborers' wages would be reviewed for comparison with present living costs about Oct. 1, "when the project is one year old."

Tries to Dissuade U. S. From Action

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— French Ambassador Gaston Henry-Haye tries today to dissuade the United States from taking strong action against his country.

He has an appointment with Secretary of State Cordell Hull who yesterday vigorously condemned the collaboration between France and Germany—a step authoritatively described as an appeal to the French people to prevent their government from helping Germany in Syria.

Despite the ambassador's anxiety, there seemed to be a steady deterioration of Franco-American relations.

Hull has told him before that this country would formulate its policy toward France on the basis of action, not words. He made that plain again yesterday.

If France persists in further collaboration with Germany, it was incidated here that the result would be a steady increase of American pressure on her that might lead ultimately to occupation of French possessions in this hemisphere and a break in relations with the Vichy government.

FISH NETS BOOM

LONDON —(INS)— Despite the fact that the war has swept fishermen from the seas, English fish-net makers are enjoying an upsurge in business. The government is buying up the nets to camouflage anti-aircraft guns, tanks, trenches and aerodrome equipment and buildings.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, JUNE 6, 1941.

We're going to preserve peace in this continent if we have to fight for it.

Let's Quit Kidding Ourselves

CAN YOU REMEMBER, back before the war began, when ex-communists used to make money writing scary pieces for the magazines, about how—if war came—reds in this country were under instructions to keep us from exerting any real power by paralyzing our industries?

The communists, said the deserters from the "cause," would cause strike after strike. They would sabotage our industries. They would even—when the crisis came, seize our telephone and other communication systems, wreck our power lines and leave the country generally a shambles.

We—meaning easy-going, self-satisfied Americans—poohpoohed that sort of thing. They couldn't do it, we said. That stuff wasn't worth paying any attention to.

Well, we've got the strikes, and have had them for some time. The strike situation seems never to get better. Whenever it gives appearance of doing so, a new crop appears.

We've got the sabotage, too. Planes are wrecked, men plunge to their deaths. Mysterious fires break out. Other inexplicable things happen.

So, on two-thirds of the forecasts by the ex-communists, the reds have made good.

They haven't seized our communications yet—maybe they really can't do that. But maybe they don't think it's time yet to try.

But the fact remains that this country's defense effort, and its aid-Britain effort is being paralyzed in parts. Not entirely, no. But it's not up to schedule, and certainly the nation as a whole is in a state of confusion.

But the communists—allies of Nazi Germany—aren't entirely responsible for our confusion.

The other day, Dr. William E. Wickenden, president of Case School of Applied Science, and a resigned member of the OPM, said that a great deal of the delay and confusion in our defense effort was due to the inability of President Roosevelt to delegate authority. The president, he said, insisted on keeping full control of all our defense moves himself. That, said the doctor, was too big a job for any one man.

Thus after a year of effort, we haven't yet begun to produce the arms we and Britain need. We haven't begun even to let the contracts for which money has been appropriated. We haven't begun to see our planes fill the sky—our guns roll in endless lines, our tanks in frightening array.

We haven't got the planes—the guns—the tanks. And we haven't got the army to use the tanks, because the army hasn't had the tanks to work with.

We've been saying we were the most powerful nation in the world. Potentially we are—but we aren't in fact. We've just been kidding ourselves and Great Britain in the past year.

The president has around him capable men—Knudsen, Stettinius and Hillman on the civilian side. He has others on the political side.

They have full knowledge of the situation—they know what should be done. They can't do it because they haven't the authority. That still lies in the White House, where also lie a thousand other problems requiring attention.

It is time for the delegation of authority—for those who have the ability to be given the powers to go ahead and get the job done.

The people realize the gravity of the situation—they know that their way of living is in peril. They know that to defend it will cost a great deal of money.

They will pay the bill. But they want action, and the kind of action of which this country is capable.

Let the administration cut the red tape and free its capable executives to do their jobs.

Let's delegate authority.

Let's quit kidding ourselves—We aren't kidding anyone else.

Survival of Our Way

ONE of the most impressive utterances made lately in this country is the statement of Senator Pepper of Florida regarding the American position internationally.

"We must hold the lifeline to Britain open," he said, "or it will be necessary to send another expeditionary force abroad. Public opinion, not congress or Roosevelt, will determine America's course. Democracy is now in the balance, and the way we respond will determine not only whether democracy shall live, but also whether it deserves to live."

Things seem to be working out along those lines.

What Capital Needs—More Space

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Visitors to Washington-under-unlimited-emergency almost invariably mutter "All is confusion."

I have written about the growth of the capital city under national defense before, but it is a continuing story becoming more amazing each day and month.

It is something Washingtonians eat and sleep. It is a more general topic of conversation than the war or weather. And it is not surprising that this is true or that the casual visitor thinks this a city of utter confusion.

Since the census was taken last year, it is estimated that Washington has increased its population 10 per cent or almost 70,000 persons. This does not take into consideration the thousands who have settled in the suburban towns in Maryland and Virginia —Alexandria, Arlington, Chevy Chase, Bethesda, Silver Spring and others. It doesn't take into consideration the thousands of new visitors—persons who have discovered a new interest in government and want to see how the whole shebang works; relatives and friends of the numberless new defense workers; business men here to confer on defense contracts; soldiers and sailors from nearby stations.

Rooms Hard To Find.

WHAT any visitor is likely to discover first is that even if it is an off-week, he may have trouble getting accommodations at any of the city's 28 first-class hotels unless he has made reservations a week or more in advance. If he is out from 7:30 to 9:30 in the morning or 3:30 to 6 in the afternoon, he'll buck the push of federal worker traffic that reaches its peak in those hours (staggered hours seem only to have spread congestion over longer periods.

At times when he is likely to be in the mood for eating or drinking, he'll find the restaurants and bars filled to capacity —and probably lines of waiting customers in the former.

If he wants a taxi, he'll find there are periods of the day and night or anytime during a storm when it is practically impossible to get one. A taxi company official tells me that a year ago there were 5,000 cabs on the streets of Washington, but now there are only 3,700. Drivers, working on the zone-rate basis (as all Washington cabs do) find the traffic slows them down so they can not make what they feel they should.

If a visitor wants to go shopping, all he can do is join the mass movement of humanity on F street from Seventh to Fourteenth and pray that it will slow up enough to let him work his way in when he comes to his store. The other half of this problem is trying to find a clerk.

Space Finder Extraordinary.

THESE are not exaggerations and I am sure that the first person who would bear me out would be Clay J. Guthridge who, although he is concerned with only one phase of what is happening to Washington, knows more about it than anyone else. It's his personal headache. Few government workers have ever heard of him, but he has affected the daily routines of more of them than any other man here. A quiet, bespectacled, middle-aged man, Guthridge is chief of planning and space control of the public buildings administration in the Federal Works Agency.

It's because of Mr. Guthridge that the new Social Security building is occupied mostly by the Office of Production Management (the Knudsen-Hillman set-up), the Office of Emergency Management (the over-all defense organization) and Army Ordnance . . . and much of the Social Security clerical staff is in Baltimore, where two warehouses are serving as temporary quarters.

It's because of him that the new Railroad Retirement building was handed over to the army. With almost every inch of available space now occupied, defense workers are being added at the rate of 4,000 a month (in Washington). Guthridge's job is to find space for them and he has against him the competition of such organizations as the British purchasing commission which has taken over one floor of the Willard hotel, three apartment buildings, a private mansion.

Aside from the greatly increased embassy staff, the British are said to have about 2,000 employes in Washington.

Let's Look Around

By the Light of a Coal Oil Lamp

—By G. J. KOCHENDERFER

SOMEWHERE IN CALIFORNIA—For the first time, ever, I am writing by the light of a kerosene lamp, in a room in which comfortable warmth is supplied by a wood stove, and at a place where honesty is so taken for granted that no locks are on the doors—only latches.

BUT enough of that, for the present, as there are a few things in the immediate past that must be told about first—just to clear up on the Los Angeles sector before considering it as "finished business."

There is, for instance, the difficulty encountered in trying to find the correct pronunciation of that city's name. That's as much of a problem in California as elsewhere. The Spanish style is "Loce Angh hail ais," but this is seldom heard and the preference hereabouts is apparently for "Loss Ang glus," although "Loss An Jelleces" is considered quite good form.

Pronounciation of the letter "j" is also rather complicated as it is sometimes pronounced as "j", usually as "h" (as in San Jose), and occasionally as "w" (as in Tijuana).

The favorite story along that line has to do with the tourist who was inquiring the way to San Jose, using the "j" sound.

After a blank look, for a moment, the person to whom the inquiry was directed said: "Oh, you mean San Hozay? You know the 'j' is sounded like 'h' out here. Do you expect to be around here long?" he then asked the tourist.

"Well, I like it pretty well and I think I'll be here through Hune and Huly," the visitor replied—always willing to learn.

ANOTHER example of California magic is the way in which Long Beach, just around the corner from Los Angeles, grew into a city of 165,000 from a start 40 years ago as a tent town in which residents of Los Angeles found readiest access to a fine beach. Long Beach is a well-balanced industrial and resort city, with 400 industrial plants, a number of which are branches of eastern concerns.

The ten million-dollar Los Angeles harbor lies along Long Beach and San Pedro, this being one of the largest deep-sea ports on either ocean. It is here that the U. S. Pacific fleet has its home base—but there are no battleships here now.

Also within Long Beach city limits is the great Signal Hill oil field, in which hundreds of derricks rise so closely as to give the appearance of a gigantic barricade.

FIRST view of the Pacific ocean, as seen from Point Ferman, is an impressive sight, as the sun sinks below the horizon—but not to one woman in a tourist party, who looked out over the expanse of water and then remarked petulantly: "So that's the Pacific ocean! I thought it was bigger."

* * *

AND now the Los Angeles area is being left behind. It has been an interesting several days, with a number of pleasant happenings and new experiences which will be long remembered. Not to be forgotten is that Ed Cappeller, who served as our capable and well-informed guide, sends regards and best wishes to all of his Mansfield friends.

* * *

THE oil lamp on the stand beside the typewriter seems dimmer than at the start—and it wasn't very brilliant even then. Tomorrow—probably with electric light available—I will tell you how this evening's writing happened to be done by coal oil lamp, in a room warmed by a wood stove—and with the door not locked.

Listen World!

A Letter to Mothers

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

MY DEAR:

You write me that your little girl has gone. I would give much to put my hands on yours and ease, even for a minute, that dreadful ache of bankruptcy: that feeling that your life has lost all its meaning. I know that feeling so well. It came to me, too.

But words, however sympathetic, cannot help you now or give you back the sweet and constant pride you felt while she lived. It changed everything, that pride, didn't it? And now, what's left? Why even try to go on? You're asking yourself these questions, aren't you? Perhaps if I tell you of something I discovered far back in the woods on this Sierra Nevada ranch, you may find the beginning of the answer.

I'd heard of it, of course. Some of the Old Timers had even known him, the strange Frenchman who had come from no one knows where and built himself a little stone cabin, far back, up the creek. A solitary sort of chap, he spent his days prospecting, rarely came to town, made no friends. No one knew his story. Nor, since his cabin was so far from the accustomed trails, did anyone try to visit him. So it was only by accident that a cattleman, rounding up some steers in the manzanita, found him lying dead, sprawled across his floor.

Nothing mysterious about that. Many a man dies like that in these ranges. Yet something in that still body made the cattleman bend curiously, then slowly remove his big, battered hat. Halfway up the rough, stone wall a shallow niche had been built. Within that niche, a gutted candle at her feet, there stood a little image of Mary, the Mother of Christ. The old Frenchman had died with his eyes upon her gentle face, his hand outstretched.

There was the story. The wreckage of the hut still stood, they said. Climbing one day through the tangled chaparral, I came upon it suddenly, amazingly. Until then I'd hardly believed the legend. But now, before me, in the standing wall, I saw the niche, the rocks still blackened by the candles he had lit. There, on the floor, he had lain, taking her comfort with his dying breath, healing his secret hurt with her courage and beauty.

And it came to me, sharply, how widespread the service of that comfort was. Wherever human life went, it followed. No man was so lost or desperate but that, in his blackest hour, he could reach toward those arms and bare his misery to those pitying eyes.

That was what Mary had meant to one outcast—to millions of outcasts in the dark corners of the earth. That was what all mothers might mean, even if their own babes were dead. Her Son was dead, too. Yet the ministry of love went on and on: no grave could bind its beauty.

Somehow one need not feel so robbed, so useless, if one could remember that!

Cry if you must, my dear. Then lift up your face and go on. Your work has just begun. Within your tear-stained hands you hold a healing miracle.

Winant's Gloomy Report Reveals British Doubt About Holding on

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—There was very little optimism in the report which Ambassador Winant, back from England, laid in the lap of the president. It was the story of a heroic people putting up a heroic battle, but also of a numbed people, now fighting automatically. How long they can continue fighting was the question.

So far no appeasement is evident with the man on the street in London. One day he is depressed by the sinking of the Hood, next next he is buoyed up by the destruction of the Bismarck. Through defeat after defeat he has kept his chin up. But now prospective withdrawal from the Mediterranean will be a stiff jolt—the stiffest jolt of all.

Actually, the man on the street in London has not realized how bad the situation is. Actually the state of public opinion is brittle. It could break.

Also, some of those at the top of the ladder—comparable to wealthy appeasers in the United States—have received feelers for a negotiated peace. These are in a very, very small minority. But the seeds are planted, and in the soil of continued adversity, they can sprout.

Can Britain Hold?

DRAWING all these together, the main question confronting the United States, as a result of Ambassador Winant's report, is how long Great Britain can hold out.

Two things are obvious. One is that if she can hold out through September, then large-scale aid will be available from this country. Second is that Hitler is determined that September will never come with England still at war.

For Hitler, the war has got to be won now or not at all. The kill is just around the corner, and if he does not close in now, he knows all too well that Germany faces a long war with the vast, though ponderously moving, industrial empire of the United States.

That is what is behind Hitler's demand of peace now or the threat that he will unleash everything in the Nazi arsenal, including poison gas, in an attempt to raze every British city.

The threat of poison gas is not taken lightly in England. The British know Hitler has the gas. They also know he can use it far more expeditiously against England than on the European continent. For in Poland, France, Yugoslavia and Greece, Nazi troops advanced so swiftly that they would have caught up with their own gas. In attacking England, however, the channel would prevent the gas from sweeping back, and the British Isles could be subjected to a bath of poisonous vapors long before Nazi troops landed.

No wonder there was no optimism in Ambassador Winant's report.

So, in brief, England may be reaching the point of the French a year ago this month, when Winston Churchill very belatedly offered the people of France an equal partnership with Britain if they continued to fight and shared her fate.

And U. S. military strategists, all too well aware of South American vulnerability to Nazi attack if the British fleet falls, are wondering whether the United States also will be too late.

No Oldsters They.

CLARENCE MARSHALL, new press director of the commerce department, tells this one on himself.

The bathroom window of his hotel apartment faces the tennis courts where Vice President Wallace daily plays a lively early morning game. Marshall shaves and watches Wallace at the same time.

Riding downtown with U. S. Circuit Judge Harold M. Stephenson, Marshall expressed the opinion that Wallace was indulging in too strenuous exercise for a man 53 years old. Judge Stephenson disagreed.

"I don't think so," he demurred. "I often play with Wallace myself."

Marshall hastily dropped the subject, but the first thing he did when he reached his office was to look up Stephenson's age. It is 55.

Nine Old Men.

MOST people don't realize that the supreme court fight, most vital political battle staged by the New Deal, still overshadows appointments and influences policies in Washington.

For in his eagerness to rebuild the supreme court with men who will carry on his ideas, Roosevelt is stripping the rest of his administration of its best minds and executives—at a time when they are sorely needed.

Latest prospective additions to the "Nine Old Men" can be spared least of all. Senator Byrnes of South Carolina is Roosevelt's most trusted operator on Capitol Hill, while Bob Jackson is one of the best legal minds produced by the New Deal.

Already Roosevelt has sent to the shadowy seclusion of the supreme bench William O. Douglas, one of the best executives developed by his administration; Frank Murphy, with a wealth of executive experience as governor-general of the Philippines, governor of Michigan, and attorney general; Stanley Reed, a great solicitor general; and Senator Hugo Black, the best crusader Roosevelt had in the senate.

Some of them, incidentally, are getting a little restless and wish they were back in the thick of the emergency fighting.

Lord Woolton's Error.

BRITISH and American officials in Washington didn't like to admit it, but they were perplexed by the appeal of the British food minister, Lord Woolton, to Americans to reduce their consumption of milk, cream, sugar, and canned fish and meat, so that needed foods could be sent to England.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard was so puzzled he actually asked the British food mission in Washington what it all meant. The British replied that they were as amazed as he was.

Fact is, of course, that we are more troubled by surpluses than shortages. The surplus marketing administration has spent millions of dollars buying up dairy products, to prevent the bottom from falling out of the market.

The idea of a sugar shortage is the most absurd of all. There is a surplus of two million tons in the Western Hemisphere. The economy of Cuba is strained because they can't find sufficient outlet for their basic crop.

Apparently somebody gave Lord Woolton a bum steer.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—A slim blond girl with a French accent that floats like a rose petal in the Seine—that's Yvette, who is neither French nor really named Yvette. She is Elsa Harris, 18, of Birmingham, who lived in New Orleans awhile, studied in a convent there, came east, and one day—just like that—became a startling and well-discussed personality.

Yvette's voice will float out of a juke box for you, if you put a nickel in the box. It will float out of a radio for you, in honeyed French accents that are soft and feminine, if you tune her in. Or it will fall pleasantly and lightly against your ears, like perfumed shadows, if you sit in Monty Proser's Copacabana and peer through the dusky glow of this nightclub in the late evenings.

For a long time, for months that is, there was local confusion as to Yvette. The general public didn't quite know who she was. This mystery did not hurt her. To be wondered about is a boon in this cat-curious town. There were pleasant lies told about her—all justifiable, all in good fun and good business acumen. Announcers would introduce her simply as "Yvette." . . . They would call her a little French girl from the Evangeline country. . . . It was a small voice that she built her affluence upon. . . . Not quite a baby voice, but a small voice and definitely a sophisticated voice that could say "love" in a way that would make the last lingering note of a mocking bird seem ungenteel and offkey.

It is taking nothing away from Yvette to suggest that her singular delivery has had much to do with the exciting success that has been cracking fire-cracker fashion about her blonde head these last eleven months. It's different. In all New York, with its thousands upon thousands of girl vocalists, there is not one with the singular half-shy quality of coquetry, wrapped in an alluring French accent, that has made her distinctive and remembered by all who have heard her.

When she began to climb in the public notice she was grabbed by one of the major broadcasting companies. Then she began to make recordings, and the demand for more of her records has been like an ever-rising chart. She went into the fancy clubs—La Martinique, the Waldorf-Astoria's famed Sert room, and now the Copacabana. . . .

What next? Qui sait? She is not in love, she says. She isn't married, not even engaged. She's 18, with brown eyes and golden hair, and certain plans for the future that have something to do with Hollywood. Meanwhile, she's at the Copacabana, pouring her heart into a microphone in tidy little packages of song that are wrapped up in old French curlicues of accent. She's five feet, five and weighs 110 lbs. Ten East Sixtieth street. Plaza 8-1060.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Monday, June 6, 1921.

Glenn H. Cummings, one-time city solicitor, was named president of the board of directors at Wittenberg college, Springfield.

H. A. Criqui was appointed chairman of the executive committee of the Community Chest campaign.

G. W. DeYarmon was elected president of the Exchange club.

A coal shortage was predicted for Mansfield.

American Legion Auxiliary was organized with Mrs. Helen Riley Mann as president.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Saturday, June 6, 1936.

Mrs. Mary Huddle, 61, died at the home of her daughter.

Helen Weller and George Gillespie, jr., were married.

Donald Dillon, 6, was struck by a car.

J. W. Kennedy was elected junior counselor of the United Commercial Travelers.

Miss Carolyn Wolf was presented numerals for her work in athletics at Denison university.

A Farmer's Diary

Indigo Bunting

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

SINCE the last week of May several pairs of indigo buntings fly low upon the scrubby trees above the road. They seem very tame, and since brush and briars are their natural habitat, I knew there would be nests concealed.

Sometimes a male bunting flies down and chirps upon the black haw bush beside the porch. Perhaps some crumbs have been dropped by the children and he has found them, for between his short attempts at song, he busily looks for something.

I never knew until yesterday he can sing as he flies. He is not an adept singer, but like the bluebird makes you love him for the splendid social atmosphere he weaves. Perhaps this modest race of buntings has learned long ago that even birds can make the environment they most desire.

Last evening, before sundown I saw this streak of blue dart from a tree with something in its beak and fly to a low squatty bush. The bright sun's rays glorified its little form and it was like a blue light shining from the dark green canopy. Its head moved toward something that was not visible to me. I surmised it was his mate brooding on the eggs, and he, like any normal dutiful husband had brought food so that the necessary processes of family life might go on without interruption.

I slipped cautiously up the bank and tried to view the little home from the opposite side. As I sat almost covered by tall grass and brush, the shining little figure returned again and to my delight, I saw a morsel of food drop from his beak into her mouth. She looked at him soberly, but I knew she must be well satisfied and proud of his devotion.

Her small head and back were brown, much like a field sparrow's except for a hint of blue upon the shoulders.

Nowhere in all the eastern borders of our country is found a bird whose coloring all over is as rich and consistent as that of the indigo bunting. His figure is small, his habits modest, but his unicolored plumage rivals the cardinal, the sparkling yellow of the Baltimore oriole or the brilliance of the black winged scarlet tanager.

In late summer days when voices of other birds grow weary with drouth and heat the bunting still pours forth his short, cheery notes for in some little bush where the locust trills, he has a second home and brood.

CLOSE AUDIT OF COUNTY RECORDS

Two State Examiners Wind Up Seven Months of Work at Courthouse.

C. R. Acton and Tom Withers, state examiners, completed their audit of Richland county records yesterday after more than seven months of work at the courthouse.

The periodic examination required more time than usual, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe pointed out, because the examiners had to "check out" five county officials whose terms ended last winter.

The examiners' recommendation for a change in the county's handling of alimony collections and payments has already been effected, with Clerk of Courts Howard Wenning taking the job from Court Bailiff David Lantz.

It was pointed out today that the change was not made because of any inaccuracies in the bailiff's records but because the examiners considered it better to consolidate court business in one office where the alimony transactions will be recorded in a docket. Lantz was given a "clean slate" by the examiners.

NO POSTMASTER

GREEN RIVER, Vt.—(INS)—The job of postmaster at Green River went begging too long—so the United States Post Office department eliminated the postoffice. After Walter Page died members of his family took care of the fourth class postoffice here but no one wanted to take the position on a permanent basis so the office was closed.

COURT RECEIPTS EXCEED $3,000

But City's Share Drops Off To Less Than In April, Says Deputy Clerk's Report.

Receipts in Mansfield's municipal court passed $3,000 during May, although the amount retained by the city decreased, according to the monthly report of Miss Isabel Gerstmeyer, deputy municipal court clerk, released today.

The total receipts were $3,010.44 as compared to only $2,790.45 in April. Of the total amount, $2,586.40 was taken on for criminal cases and $424 on civil. Only $1,472.95 was retained by the city, a drop of $245.95, while $1,113.45 was distributed to various state and county units.

Highest amount collected for the city was $571.75, for forfeitures for traffic violations. The city's share of costs for state cases amounted to $325.75. From handling state highway patrol cases, $281.15 was collected. The city also received $292.30 for fines and costs on city cases.

Distributed to other governmental units were: state treasurer, $14.20; state liquor department, $14.20; state highway patrol, $281.15; law library, $772.60; conservation division, $25; and Richland county sheriff, $6.30.

CIRCLES CONVENE FOR PROGRAM MEETINGS

Presbyterian Groups Meet for Business and Social Periods at Homes of Mrs. Meese, Mrs. Ingram, Mrs. Kroegher, Mrs. Bissman, Mrs. Rice.

REGULAR monthly meetings of the circles of the First Presbyterian church were held Thursday afternoon. Circle One members were entertained at the home of Mrs. D. O. Meese, Woodland road, with Mrs. John Burns serving as associate hostess. Thirty-one members and three guests, Mrs. Harvey Lanehart, Mrs. L. L. Balliett and Virginia Lee Price, were in attendance. Mrs. William King conducted the devotions and led the round table discussion on poetry. Sewing was done for the Red Cross. Later Mrs. W. P. Spencer presided at the tea table when refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held July 3 at the home of Mrs. R. E. McCombs, 608 Arlington avenue.

Mrs. H. N. Kroegher, Ruth avenue, was hostess to members of Circle Two at her home, assisted by Mrs. Glenn Rohleder. Mrs. P. F. Haley, president, conducted the business session for the 29 members and one guest. Mrs. Robert Black was in charge of devotions and Mrs. W. R. Hainer told of her trip through the southwestern states. When tea was served Mrs. Elizabeth Smythe presided. The next meeting on July 10 will be held at the Smythe home, Marion avenue.

Circle Three members met at the home of Mrs. Frank Bissman, 611 Bigelow road, with Mrs. A. C. Kell and Mrs. F. E. Kimmell as associate hostesses. "Message of the Prophet Joel" was the topic discussed for the devotions by Mrs. R. M. Morris. Mrs. R. C. Stanton, circle chairman, presided during the routine business meeting. The remainder of the afternoon was spent socially and refreshments were served. The meeting scheduled for July 10 will be at the home of Mrs. Irl Fisher, Park avenue west road, with Mrs. J. G. Wallace assisting.

Eighteen members of Circle Four met at the home of Mrs. George Ingram, Augustine avenue, for a business and social session. Mrs. Richard Uhl, a guest, furnished the program, giving "The History of Richland County." The remainder of the meeting was spent in sewing for the hospital. When tea was served Mrs. R. M. Calene presided. On July 10 the group will hold a breakfast party at Middle park with the circle officers in charge.

Mrs. J. M. Johnston furnished the program for the meeting of Circle Five at the home of Mrs. R. L. Rice, Clifton boulevard. Associate hostesses were Mrs. Sam Orr, Mrs. H. O. Simmons, Mrs. Stella Heath and Mrs. G. W. Bahl, jr. Mrs. Johnston reviewed the book, "One Foot in Heaven" by Spence. Twenty-eight were present and participated in the devotions led by Mrs. C. C. Wagner. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held July 10 at the home of Mrs. C. W. Barnes, 453 Forest avenue.

LEILE MAXINE TINKEY MARRIES MR. EYERLY

Announcement Made Thursday Evening at Susie Janis Home of Wedding Solemnized Oct. 12 In Covington, Ky., for Mansfield Couple.

AT A LOVELY PARTY at the Susie Janis home, Park avenue west road, Thursday evening, announcement was made of the marriage of Miss Leile Maxine Tinkey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Tinkey, 170 North Benton street, and Harold L. Eyerly, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Eyerly, Ashland road. The nuptials were solemnized Oct. 12, 1940, at Covington, Ky., by Rev. Bruce Strother, pastor of the Immanuel Methodist church. Attending the couple were Mr. and Mrs. Clifford L. Johnson of Mansfield.

The marriage date was revealed to the guests by a bird with a note in its bill, which was used for a centerpiece for the U-shaped table. Also decorating the table was a miniature bride and rose trellis. Tall lighted white tapers illuminated the board and at each place were favors of small vases filled with a Sweetheart rose.

Thirty guests attended the party and enjoyed the diversions of bridge and hearts. Prizes were won by Miss Mary Kelsey and Miss Louise Bush. Out-of-town guests present were Mrs. David Camp, Mrs. Maude Kurtz, Mrs. Clyde Kreiling, Mrs. Allen Doerrer, of Ashland, and Mrs. Sherwool Humbert of Galion. The hostess, Mrs. Tinkey, mother of the bride, presented her with a set of lamps.

Mrs. Eyerly wore a dubonnet velvet frock for her wedding and a corsage of Briarcliffe roses. She is a graduate of Mansfield high school and is employed at the Lumbermen's Mutual Insurance company. Mr. Eyerly was graduated from Madison high school and attended Ashland college and Baldwin Wallace college. He is now stationed at Camp Shelby, Miss.

"Accept a bride's thanks, dear Camay, for helping her to a lovely skin"

—Says Mrs. Joseph M. Sinnott

You, too, can benefit from Camay's greater mildness—as have many women, even with dry or delicate skin.

AT HER WEDDING Mrs. Joseph M. Sinnott's dark, stately beauty made her a vision of unusual loveliness. Dark brown hair and blue eyes combined with a flawless skin to form a picture that any artist would have loved to paint.

Mrs. Sinnott cares for her skin with Camay. She pays tribute to Camay's wonderful mildness—its gentle, creamy lather. Lovely women everywhere feel enthusiastic about Camay—especially women with a somewhat delicate skin.

For a great new improvement has made Camay milder than six of the other best-selling beauty soaps—as we proved by actual tests. And skin specialists we talked to say that regular cleansing with a fine, mild toilet soap can help your skin look lovelier.

Camay now comes in two sizes.

Let this milder Camay's gentle care help you to look lovelier. And try the new BATH SIZE. It will make a hit with your family. It's the same, new improved Camay in a larger, more economical size.

BATH SIZE Camay is more than half again as large as the regular complexion cake . . . gives you more than half again as much of this fragrant, free-lathering soap. Yet it sells at a popular low price, at a saving to you. Get a few cakes from your dealer today.

Mrs. Sinnott was married in St. Gabriel's Church, New Rochelle, N. Y. She wore a wedding dress of off-white satin cut on princess lines, with a veil of rose point lace over tulle. Mrs. Sinnott takes the greatest care of her skin. She says of Camay: "I chose Camay for my beauty soap because of its mildness. My complexion needs extra care. Camay is so amazingly mild, it's just right for skins like mine."

Photographs by David Berns

Mr. Sinnott assists his lovely bride in the traditional ceremony of cutting the wedding cake. The wedding reception was held at the fashionable Larchmont Shore Club. Afterwards this happy pair sailed for a honeymoon in Bermuda.

FOR EXTRA ECONOMY!

NEW BATH SIZE CAMAY

Camay now comes in two sizes! The whole family will like the extra luxury of this new BATH SIZE Camay! It's so handy to hold...gives you such wonderful lather...and saves you money, too!

"I want a day-in, day-out frock with all the easy, casual simplicity of a cotton frock PLUS the good styling of a better dress!" Here's the answer to a busy lady's plea—in a Marian Martin newcomer, Pattern 9739. There's both smartness and convenience in a full-length front buttoning that lets you in and out quickly without mussing your fabric, and that makes ironing easier. There's figure-flattery in the long-waisted look of those well-shaped side bodice sections, and in the front and back skirt panelling. And there's feminine charm in the revers and sleeve-tabs, nice in button-trimmed self-fabric or in lace or braid-edged contrast. Choose a becoming color of cotton or shantung for this style.

Pattern 9739 may be ordered only in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48 Size 36 requires 4¾ yards 35 inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"THANK YOU so much, my Philip," Olga said, and with a comradely smile her husband went to the outer door, turning back to play his role in the little act we were putting on for the benefit of the unknown marauder on the balcony

"I'll be back very shortly," he said, in tones which easily could be heard on the balcony

"We shall be waiting for you," I told him with my voice raised to an equally audible pitch

The door closed upon him, and Olga gave a high-pitched little laugh

'Now if you'll lend me your mirror," she said, and I responded promptly—and loudly

"Just come into my bedroom," I said, and we went into the bedroom, where I uttered the final line of our colloquy

"Here's the mirror and all the fixings" I told her, and I shoved a chair toward the dresser, purposely knocking it clumsily against the table.

Enters Secret Hideaway.

Then cautiously, noiselessly, we put back the strip of paneling over the keyhole in the disguised door, pushed the door open and entered the other room, closing the door after us, but not locking it.

If by any chance the man on the balcony of my suite should make his way into my room, I wanted no telltale click of a lock to herald our return.

As I opened the corridor door of the new addition to my suite, Philip Veritzen came around the corner of the hall and I stepped back to admit him.

"Nice timing," he said, smiling at me. "Did you lock that hidden connecting door?"

"No," I said, and told him why.

"Good idea," he commented. And then, when we were all seated comfortably, he settled into his chair with an air of relaxation.

"We can draw our respective breaths for a few minutes," he said. "That fellow on the balcony won't come into those rooms unless he figures they're empty or that you're alone there. So suppose, Scheharazade" — he smiled lazily at me—"you tell us the story you promised us."

Madge Tells Her Story.

"Gladly," I answered, and forthwith plunged into the tale, beginning with the letter which Helena Brixton had sent to Lillian about Ronald's alarming reaction to Marion's inexplicable treatment of him, and which Lillian had sent to me.

I told them then of Lillian's frenzied telephone message, telling of Marion's disappearance from college, and of my promise to go to her. At that point Olga, usually so poised, threw out her hand in almost a frantic gesture to me, while her face was twisted with emotion.

"Oh! poor Lillian!" she said "Dear God! how it brings it all back to me! I know so well what she is going through"

Her husband, from his chair beside her, put out his hands and took her twisting ones in his holding them tightly yet caressingly, until her features composed themselves again.

I did not speak until she was calm again, and my memory traveled back to the days which Olga was also remembering, hectic days of adventure and bewilderment for us at the farm, but days, weeks and months of harrowing anxiety for the mother of Princess Olina.

Recalls Olina's Runaway.

For Olina had run away from her royal parents and her fiance, Prince Georges, at that time heir to the throne of Trees, which he later ascended and under an assumed name had taken up her residence at The Larches, a country place near the farm, attended only by two faithful old retainers.

To "save face," it has been given out that Princess Olina was desperately ill. A maid swathed in blankets, to impersonate Olina, had been carried up the gangplank of the liner to the royal staterooms, and the king and queen, outwardly calm but with anguish-torn souls, had gone home without knowing their daughter's fate.

A shuddering sigh testified to the poignant memories flooding Olga's brain, and I spoke quickly. "If only Lillian's ordeal ends as happily as did yours, I shall be content," I said.

SAMARITAN CLASS.

The regular meeting of the Samaritan class of the Park Avenue Baptist church will be held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Roy Crider, 402 Springmill street.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, June 7.

This should be a particularly enterprising and productive day, with matters moving at high tempo or under high pressure or strain, according to important lunar aspects. It is a time for decisive and well directed action in promoting new ventures or infusing to renewed life old static or congested situations. There may be some opposition to this, but aggressive and determined action should give desired results. Corporations, political or fraternal organizations should respond and there may be social benefits and signs of good will as well. Pleasant correspondence is shown

Those whose birthday it is have a very active and strenuous year ahead with the forecast of much productive and constructive work advancing upon cherished goals. In this there may be real support from influential personages of major organizations, offsetting the opposition or antagonism of elders, employers or superiors. New as well as stagnant affairs, as well as static investments may be stirred into activity and the social factors may be decisive also, with pleasant correspondence bearing fruits.

A child born on this day should be aggressive and impetuous, with firm determination to put over its objectives despite antagonism, this assisted by its agreeable social and friendly personality.

W. C. T. U. SESSION.

Iota Sigma, W. C. T U held their regular meeting Thursday at 2:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Charles Young, 149 East Fourth street. Miss Lillian Beaumont and Miss Joanna Potzner furnished special music for the meeting. Mrs. Harry Yohn led the devotions. Miss Potzner spoke to the group on the present affairs of our country. Plans were made to hold a picnic at South park, June 26 at 6 p. m

ASTOWELA MEETING.

Members of the Astowela Garden club will be entertained Friday at 11 o'clock at the home of Mrs. H. G. Balyeat, Edgewood road. Mrs. R. L Walker will be the associate hostess Roll call will be answered by "Our Flower Rhyme."

AN AFTERNOON TREAT

Here is a delicious tid-bit to try on the bridge club: Make up a rich biscuit dough and pat it out until about one-third of an inch thick. Spread with butter and cover with a generous layer of white cream cheese and peanut butter. Sprinkle with broken nut meats and roll up. Cut off half-inch slices, place flat sides up in a greased pan and bake for 10 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve hot with fruit, fish or meat salad. No additional butter will be needed.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

BEATING GOOD DEFENSE

Exactly the same score may be produced at two different tables of a duplicate game, the declarers managing to make the identical contract. In one of those cases, however, it may be due to the fact that the defense eliminated a guess by hopping up with a crucial high card of cards at the first opportunity. In the other, they may have made it more difficult for the declarer by preserving whatever chance there was for them to beat it, so he had to do a good job himself. Wouldn't you rather get your score the second way?

	♠ 10 5 ♥ K Q 5 4 3 ♦ 8 ♣ A K Q 8 6
♠ K 8 2 ♥ J 8 7 ♦ 10 6 5 2 ♣ 9 7 5	N. W. E. S.	♠ J 9 6 4 3 ♥ 9 ♦ A J ♣ J 10 4 3 2

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♥	Pass

At nearly all tables, East led a small spade against this contract. One declarer, about whom little should be said, in the name of kindness, tried the spade finesse and was beaten, because West made the marked return of a diamond to the A. At other tables, North refused the finesse because he had a better chance.

After the spade A won the opener, the usual line of play was to the heart K, back to the heart A, a heart to the Q, three high clubs and then a lead of the diamond 8. Where East came in with his A, there was no more problem. He returned the club J, but dummy ruffed it and on the diamond K and Q put his remaining club and spade, leaving him trumps for the last two tricks.

One hard-trying East refused to set up those two diamond tricks so easily in the dummy. He played his J on the 8, but the sharp-eyed declarer noted the absence of the 10, so came up with the Q. Then this player, Arthur L. Pulver, as thorough in bridge as he is in financial analysis, let a diamond for a ruff which killed the A, returned to dummy with the ruff of a club, discarded his spade on the diamond K, and wound up giving East a club trick at the end, getting the same result as if East had played his A on the first diamond lead.

Tomorrow's Problem.

What is the soundest bidding of this deal in rubber bridge? In match point duplicate?

Charles Walker, a young man who buys up old treasures, says that women began to wear diamonds in earnest when multi-candle illumination was introduced at the French court. A thousand candles shone on one chandelier at Versailles, giving great glitter to the gems.

CHAPTER VIII

This was as near as Cherry ever had heard her come to criticism or unkindness, and she smiled at her interrogatively.

"That doesn't sound like you, Mrs. Porter," she said, with the simple daring that she knew well the old woman liked. "You always say such nice things about everyone."

"Well, I hope I always do, my dear, but somehow that girl always does seem to me outlandish. And I loved his first wife, Mary Lee Carey. She died—oh, ten years ago. Her mother was Sophy Laquelle, French family here — lovely people — consul to San Francisco—all that. We met her uncle—forget his name now, Count Somebody, outside of Paris—Barbizon. It was near Barbizon or else it was at St. Cloud—I don't remember. . . ."

She was off on a long story. Cherry could ruminate at leasure upon the morning's encounter, and take out every one of it's words and glances and intonations for inspection, with the warmest feeling at her heart that in the last few months—perhaps in her entire life—she had ever known.

A day or two later a package came for her. A round, silver-paper box of candy was inside, tied with a gay bow of scarlet ribbon. Within again, on the soft silver paper that covered a circle of chocolates, was a card — a brown card with the name of James Kelly Coates on it, and in the corner, also engraved in brown on paler brown, the address "Topcote, Spanish Farm Road, Sausalito."

Scribbled on the card were the words: "It was to have been your first orchid. But this seems more practical just now."

And below, in fine writing: "By the way, it's pronounced 'aw-kid,' not 'orch-hid.' No one seems to know why!"

Cherry found this package in her room upon returning from a drive. In a few minutes she would be expected downstairs to preside at the tea table and listen to old-lady talk. But for just a dizzy space she must give way to the keenest ecstacy that a girl's heart ever knows—the first fragrant breath that blows from a country too dazzling, too magical to be entered except with bated breath and timid steps.

The card in one hand, the box in the other, she went to the window and stood staring unseeing at the close of the winter day in the shadowy streets, at whitecaps on the ruffled bay, the dark silhouette of Tamalpais against the cold lemon, and lead-colored streaking of the west. And at that minute Cherry would not have changed places with any other woman in the whole world.

This was Thursday, and he would be here to dinner two weeks from tonight, her heart sang. And whether he noticed her or not, or spoke to her or not, she would see him — she would see him laugh and hear his voice and perhaps she could find an unobserved second in which to murmur thanks to him.

Mrs. Porter's proposed dinner party for a chosen dozen of the debutantes took on an increasing importance as the days went by, and, by the debutantes' mothers and families, was by degrees developed into a much larger affair. It was a long time—perhaps twenty or twenty-five years—since entertaining on a large scale had taken place in the old Glashell mansion, and the newspapers made much of it, and many were the friendly offers of assistance to Cherry's employer as the plan got daily under way.

The original twelve girls swelled to a score, to thirty, for there were many who must not be forgotten, and at least forty eligible young men were asked to join them. Then certain favored and intimate elders were included to save the hostess the least effort, and in no time at all caterers had come in to set tables and decorate them and prepare a sumptuous meal for one hundred guests; florists arrived with palms and ropes of chrysanthemums; newspapermen and photographers gave the house no rest; a five piece orchestra was engaged, and Mrs. Porter remained in bed all day, getting herself completely rested and ready.

To Cherry's eagerness and inexperience and hunger for excitement all this was satisfying beyond words. She was everywhere; she helped with everything.

In the midst of the flurry the guest of honor, Dorothy Page-Smith, arrived with a formidable mother as escort, and took possession of one of the big rooms on the second floor. This alone would have supplied Cherry with pleasurable interest, for Dorothy was a harmless, indeed a seemingly half-witted little creature who turned to Cherry at once as being the only other person of anything like her age in the house, and in a babyish lisp consulted her about her gowns, her hair arrangement, her beaux and the possibility of her having anything but a "wotten" time in a place where she just didn't know one "thingle thole."

The day of the party was overcast with a cold rain spattering down.

At seven o'clock, trim and demure in her blue dress with the silver buttons, Cherry went into Mrs. Porter's bedroom to find Emma and Ferny busily getting the old lady into a magnificent robe of silver and blue brocade, decorating the beautiful curls of her rich white hair with diamond butterflies and preparing her with a preliminary cup of tea and chicken sandwich for the evening's frivolities.

She had at first planned to go downstairs tonight, to be installed majestically in some great chair, to welcome her guests herself. But this seemed at the last moment too great an effort.

So Emma and Ferny propped her up comfortably and arranged the lights becomingly, and were barely finished as the clock struck the half-hour after seven, when Dorothy and her mother came in to preen themselves under the old lady's approving eyes; to admire her and be praised themselves. And in another half-hour three or four mothers were there, and quite a little reception was going on in the upstairs sitting room. At Cherry's suggestion the arriving guests were to be sent upstairs in detachments; she went below at half past eight to find sixty of them milling about enjoying a succession of cocktails, and was reminded of old days at Saint Dorothea's and school theatricals as she sent them up in parties of six, and moved about among them.

Although the house was warmed by a furnace, the big fires were blazing brightly everywhere; the hideous big chandeliers were dark, candles and a few dim lamps were the only supplement to the firelight, and in the soft glow the girls looked lovely in their floating and glittering gowns, and the constantly forming and dissolving groups made one dramatic picture after another.

Unexpectedly, Cherry found Amy Marshbanks in the center of an admiring circle, and hated herself for the wretched little prick of jealousy that rose even through her new-found sense of ease and power. She looked for Fran and Kelly Coates, but they were evidently coming later; they were not in sight. When the time came for her to say to Amy that if she would please—would any four of them—go upstairs and say good evening to Mrs. Porter, Amy stared at her amusedly, entirely without recognition, and said in an undertone to an adoring boy beside her:

"What's the big idea? Is Nursey telling us to say we had a nice time"

The two great drawing rooms that were connected by folding doors had been thrown open; the formal French parlor across the wide hall had its fire and its sprinkling of young persons; the enormous "blue room" had been put into commission and would presently be used as a supplementary dining room; tables in the great library were piled with men's hats and overcoats and mufflers and the hall and the "red-room" were cleared for dancing.

There was a smaller library known as "the den" tucked away under the wide turn of the stairway. The door into the hall was open, but when Cherry approached it to answer the telephone in the hall near it she had no idea that anyone was in the room.

NEW BOOK GIVES INTIMATE DATA ON CHURCHILL

Written By Secretary, Volume Tells Personal Life of Statesman.

An intimate analytical profile of Winston Churchill is furnished by Phyllis Moir in "I Was Winston Churchill's Secretary," new title now available at the Mansfield Public Library.

As his private secretary the author had the opportunity to observe Churchill at long and close range and her observations provide a brilliant account of the Prime Minister's personal life, his hobbies, habits and foibles

Commander Edward Ellsberg vividly recreates the life of John Paul Jones in his new novel, CAPTAIN PAUL. This timely story is told in the words of Tom Folger, a young Nantucketer, whose admiration for Captain Paul leads him to throw in his lot with the great fighter, from his early days as privateer to the fatal engagement with the "Serapis." Captain Paul is not only an exciting adventure story, but it is inevitable that readers should see in it a warning and exhortation for Americans today.

HILTON HEAD by Joseph Pinckney is the story of a young opportunist, a rebel doctor from the stiffness of a conventional English home, Henry Woodward —of his adventures among the English, Spanish and Indians of early Florida and Carolina; of four women who influenced his life. As a corsair cruising the Caribbean, he is cast away by a hurricane on Nevis, one of the Leeward Islands. Returning to Carolina, he settles near the present Charleston at Hilton Head, as one of the founders of that colony.

RING-TAILED ROARERS edited by Victor Chittick is a collection of tall tales of the American frontier, mostly from the west and southwest, 1830-1860 One meets the frontier braggart, best represented by Mike Fink and many other half-legendary figures. Some of the stories are told in dialect, and the first chapter is an introduction to this phrase of American humor. The crude wood engravings by Lloyd J Reynolds are most appropriate illustrations

OTHER FICTION: TRIUMPH OF WILLIE POND by Slade

BEST SHORT STORIES OF 1940 ed. by O'Brien.

EGGS, BEANS AND CRUMPETS by Wodehouse.

Roger Burlingame writes of the life of Eli Whitney in his new book, WHITTLING BOY. His is the story of a man fascinated by machines and drawn to them in spite of his ambition to be a lawyer. Eli Whitney is best known for his invention of the cotton gin, but his discovery of the practicability of inter-changeable parts, in connection with the manufacture of muskets for a government contract, has perhaps been more important in industry.

Against the background of the romantic history, the oddly differing character, the tropical and mountainous charm of the West Indies, Glanville Smith in his book, MANY A GREEN ISLE, spins an absorbing account of his adventures in sloop and hidden cove, church and grogshop, plantation and native town, the result is an enchanting record of his experiences packed with information about a little-known region that has lately assumed vast new importance to the United States.

MAGIC IN A BOTTLE by Milton Silverman is a fascinating compilation of facts about the discovery, preparation and use of the miracle-workers of modern medicine—quinine, digitalis, sulphanilamide and others.

$50,000 DAMAGE SUIT COMES UP FOR SECOND TRIAL MONDAY

A $50,000 damage suit filed by John M. Grubaugh, Mansfield, against the Ohio Public Service company is scheduled for trial a second time Monday morning before the Richland county petit jury.

The suit, which seeks damages for injuries Grubaugh allegedly received when he grasped a power line while moving a house in Rome, was dismissed about two years ago in common pleas court. The plaintiff later filed a new petition, restating his case.

He contends the power line was too low over the street and was not insulated. Attys. H. M. Rust and O. W. Kennedy represent Grubaugh and Attys. C. H. Henkel and J. H. Gongwer are the defense counsel.

The case is the first of five on the court calendar for next week, beginning Monday and continuing through Wednesday.

On the schedule for Tuesday are two judgment cases, one for $365 and the other seeking $300.

T. N. Case is the plaintiff in the $356 case. He asks the amount from Dorothy Kaercher as payment he contends is due for drawing plans for a residence for the defendant Attys. Beam and Beam are plaintiff's counsel and Leslie K Wagner represents the defendant

In the other action, Jerome Risser and others ask $300 for alleged breach of contract involving a lot on Home avenue, Mansfield. The suit is against C. C. Laser and G. L. Walker Atty. John F. Kramer represents the plaintiffs.

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Two animal stories are popular with young subscribers at the Mansfield Public Library. One, "Captain," is the story of an army mule that served in both the Spanish-American and World wars. The other is that of a favorite horse.

HIGH HURDLES by Frances Duncombe—Debby's favorite horse was sold along with the farm and everything. Then her father became a groom in a rich man's stables. Debby was allowed to help him, and she enjoyed that very much.

CAPTAIN: THE STORY OF AN ARMY MULE by Lucy Herndon Crockett—This mule first served in the Spanish-American war. Then he served in every conflict until the end of the World war. His story is not only an interesting story of a mule, but a story of the soldiers whom he served.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Broadway Futurama.

(To give you a rough idea of what a Broadway column will read like twenty or thirty years from now. A very rough idea.)

* * *

JOAN BLONDELL was named the nation's "Most Glamorous Great-Grandmother" in a recent poll. . . . John Ford will get the Academy Award for his new screening of "The Great Train Robbery" . . . Annette Dionne won't have to look far for a quartette of bridesmaids when she weds that famous flier next month. . . .

Dorothy Kilgallen

Brenda Frazier ate her millionth shrimp cocktail at dinner last night. Newsreels recorded the event . . . Sherman Billingsley will send television sets to all the debutantes come Yuletide.

That ravishing blonde being seen everywhere with Tommy Manville used to be known as Baby Sandy on the screen—many, many years ago. He's just gifted her with an ermine upholstered roadster!

Johnny Pulitzer, of the famous newspaper clan—whose current play won critics' raves—is best bet for this year's Saroyan prize. . . . Mickey Rooney is slated for the title role in "Rip Van Winkle," M. G. M.'s new epic. . . .

The Algonquin Inn, which Frank Case has been managing these past few years as a Home for Octogenarian Celebrities, will re-open soon as a night club.

There is also talk of introducing prize fights and other sporting events at Madison Square Garden, if a deal can be made to bring the Garden back from Honolulu, where Billy Rose is operating it as an authentic New York atmosphere night club.

Get George S. Kaufman to tell you the "who was that lady I saw you with?" gag. The punch line is a honey. . . . Franchot Tone is squiring Cobina Wright III everywhere. It seems only yesterday that he was wooing her maw. . . .

Don't bother sending congratulatory wires to Charles Chaplin and Paulette Goddard on their 25th wedding anniversary. They're still denying it ever happened.

Gertrude Niesen and Buzz Meredith had El Morocco ringsiders in stitches last night when they did an old-fashioned dance known as the Conga. . . . Jack Whiting will have the lead in the new Georgie Hale musical.

Deanna Durbin will be a grandmother in August. . . . The new style sensation next Fall will be a revolutionary kind of silk stocking—not made of nylon.

Myrna Loy and Bill Powell will make another sequel to "The Thin Man" for their next. . . . Sleuths are investigating the theory of a hitch-hiker who vows he saw Judge Crater in Conshohocken last Thursday. . . . Noel Coward will bet you that his beard is longer than George Bernard Shaw's.

Wonder how many of the matrons who claim they used to be John Powers models actually were. That new bistro, Philip and Harold's, is operated by the respective sons of Leon and Eddie, bonifaces of a past era. . . .

HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD—The corn grows tall in the movie fields these days, tall and ripe for golden harvests

To be labeled "corny" was once a movie dread. Stars who basked in the glow of capital-A art would have no part of a picture that suggested the maize. "It's pure corn" was a devastating comment on a picture or a performance

ROBBIN COONS

Judy Canova is pure corn—and that's a compliment. Some of the big cities haven't caught on yet, but in the towns where they know what corn looks like in the fields Judy is as welcome as corn on the cob, dripping with butter, sprinkled with salt.

Francis Lederer is Judy's leading man in "Puddin' Head." When Lederer came to town, in a delicate corn-pudding called "Autumn Crocus," he was all art and charm and romance. Most of his movies, even the comedies, were compounded of the same. His last film until now was "The Man I Married," in which he played a character. Then he went with Cornell in "No Time For Comedy." From Cornell to Corn, a logical step. Cornell to Canova.

Corn is in, all right. Abbott and Costello are wholesale dealers in the old reliable staple. How are they doing? They're cleaning up.

Ted Lewis is helping the boys dish out the corn "Oh, Charlie" was their third picture. When the bosses looked at the grosses on "Buck Privates" they padded the budget on "Oh, Charlie" and sent for Ted Lewis, merchant prince of corn. Ted says he's corny. He says he plays a "corny clarinet."

You'll find the corn in some of the smartest movies, too. "Love Crazy" (William Powell-Myrna Loy) is loaded with it. So is "One Night in Lisbon"—for what's cornier than sex?

What's cornier, indeed, unless it's Mother Love ("Stella Dallas) or Courage (Gone With The Wind," "North West Mounted Police," "Sergeant York," "A Yank in the R. A. F," etc.) or A Little Child Shall Lead Them (as in "Penny Serenade," and a hundred other movies)?

COMPLETE BAN ON PLEASURE CAR USE SEEN

Ickes Warns of Action Within Month, Power Curtailment Also Forecast.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Millions of Americans, rich and poor alike, today faced a prospect of going short on both oil and electricity because of the war abroad and this country's vigorous preparations for defense.

Secretary Ickes, defense petroleum administrator, warned that the great population of the eastern seaboard may be called upon, within a month to forego the use of automobiles for pleasure, both on week days and on Sundays.

The office of production management announced simultaneously yesterday that civilian curtailment in the consumption of power "in important areas" would be necessary, if sufficient energy was to be made available" in time to produce the supplies of aluminum and magnesium demanded by the growing aircraft and lend-lease program."

Ickes accordingly renewed his advocacy of daylight saving time for the whole country, as an emergency measure to conserve electric power.

Meanwhile, congress took cognizance of the threatened oil famine, the house yesterday hurriedly passed a bill, requested by President Roosevelt, to facilitate construction of pipelines that would run oil to the east from Texas and Louisiana, and probably from Illinois and other sources.

Under the measure, which now goes to the senate, government agencies or private concerns would be empowered to use the right of eminent domain for obtaining rights-of-way to push construction of any pipeline the president designated as vital to defense Powers in the measure would expire June 30, 1943.

The OPM statement on the anticipated electricity shortage declared that the views on power expressed by C W. Kellogg, president of Edison Electric Institute who is serving as OPM chief of power, were his individual opinions and did not represent the position of OPM

This extraordinary disagreement of the OPM with the views of its power director followed closely a statement by Ickes that Kellogg "certainly was misrepresenting the facts" when he said in a speech at Buffalo that "the power situation will be found to have been adequately provided for."

Kellogg, at Buffalo, replied that his statement had been made only after "careful preparation" and that he would let it "stand for the present."

ASSESSMENTS ORDERED PAID

City Prepares To Certify List For Collection on Tax Duplicate.

Assessments against property owners for improvements to various streets abutting their properties during the past year have been authorized by council for collection, City Auditor Paul L. Kelley announced today.

The assessments are for the grading and graveling, repaving and construction of sanitary sewers on the streets. Property owners will have 30 days to pay their assessments at Kelley's office. Those not paying in that period will have them added to their tax duplicates.

If placed on the tax duplicates, property owners will be allowed to make payments for grading or sewer construction in three annual installments. Repaving bills may be paid in five installments.

Streets and the assessments for their improvements include:

Barnard avenue from Main to Euclid, grading and graveling, $1,996; Fourth street from Diamond street to new overhead project, repaving, $18,125.45, Taylor road from Overlook to Cline avenue, sanitary sewer, $1,854 78; Poplar street and Sloan avenue, grading and graveling, $3,371 47, south side of Park avenue west and Glenbeck lane, sanitary sewer, $3,480; Overlook avenue, sanitary sewer, $1,742. VACCINE SPRAY SEEN AS AID TO CONTROL OF COMMON COLDS

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND—Progress toward control of the common cold by use of vaccine in a new way was reported today at the American Medical association's convention.

The vaccine is sprayed into the nose, instead of being injected under the skin or administered by mouth—methods previously shown to be unsatisfactory.

Dr. Theodore E. Walsh of St. Louis said 74 per cent of patients observed over an eight-year period were free of colds following this treatment, tried after experiments on rabbits. Two per cent showed marked improvement and 16 per cent were not benefited.

The treatment involves building up tissue immune to the disease-producing bacteria. After the vaccine of bacteria taken from the ears, nose and throat is applied to the mucous lining of the nose, both the blood and the tissues fight the germs.

The tissues build up white corpuscles to combat the invading bacteria, and the blood forms a counteractive substance.

Dr. Walsh said the nose has two defenses against the invading germs the "front line," or the mucous blanket and the hairy tissue covering it; and the "second line" of natural immune responses of tissues

He contended vaccine injections and oral administrations were failures because they cannot build sufficient protective substance in the vulnerable nasal tissue

Mansfielder's who would like to know just how it happens that a native daughter became the bride of one of the most famous political prisoners of this decade can get all the details in a new book at the Public library. It's James R. Young's "Behind The Rising Sun" and the "native daughter" of course is the former Marjorie Willis, daughter of Mansfielder J. Edgar Willis. Young's book which divides its pages between humorous anecdotes about life in Japan and the political situation which led up to his 61-day imprisonment in Tokio tells interestingly of his meeting with Miss Willis, their whirlwind romance, and subsequent "marriages" in best oriental and western tradition.

Some motorist was surprised early today when he found a note on his windshield from Mansfield police telling him that the wires connected with his horn had been cut. His car was parked in the parking lot next to the Fairview hotel. Shortly after 3:30 a. m. today, the horn started blowing. As the car was locked and the owner not to be found, all efforts to stop the noise were unsuccessful. Before police finally cut the wires leading to the horn, practically all guests in the hotel had been awakened.

WOULD GARNER 'UNWARRANTED' U. S. EARNINGS

Farm Leaders Hit Groups That Seek Selfish Advantage, Production Stoppage.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt has authorized his congressional leaders to limit the pending "draft property" bill to a grant of additional power to commandeer strike-bound defense plants, it was learned reliably today.

The original draft, proposed by the war department, has been bitterly denounced by even administration supporters.

Accordingly, leaders are drafting legislation which would greatly modify the measure. As introduced, the bill would authorize the requisitioning during the emergency of any private property, temporarily or permanently, on payment of compensation to be determined by the president.

Sen. Tom Connally, (D, Tex.) has introduced an amendment to the conscription act designed to permit the president to take over and operate any defense plant where production is delayed, or treatened with delay, because of a strike or other labor dispute, or other cause.

Although the war department bill deals with the requisitioning of property and Connally's is designed to deal with strikes that impede defense production, the latter is based on the belief that additional strike authority is the primary purpose of the requisitioning bill

Predicts Serious Coal Shortage By Next Fall In U. S.

TOLEDO — (U P) — A national shortage of coal in serious proportions by next fall is forecast by E. R. Howe, president of the Appalachian Coals, Inc., Cincinnati, one of the world's biggest coal producers.

Speaking last night before the National Association of Packaged Fuel Manufacturers, Howe said the recent soft coal mine shutdown reduced the normal reserve of 50,000,000 tons to a current inventory of only 14,000,000 tons.

As factors contributing toward a shortage, Howe cited a growing scarcity of railroad cars for transportation and the lack of labor. Many men who work in the mines and on the railroad are being drafted into army service and attracted into defense industries, he said

There is a further lack of adequate mining machinery and repair facilities for existing machinery, he added.

ATTENDS RITES FOR HIS MOTHER

Sport Podge by REX HESS

I am talking of this and that with Carl Graham, of the composing room Grahams, when he ups and speaks in this wise:

"I see you have a piece in the paper about my relative."

Now I do not care to be looking over Carl's family album of old photographs and tin-types, but I try to be polite at all times, so I ask:

"Who is this relative of whom you speak?"

"I mean big Lee Stuckman, the pitcher from Bucyrus who throws quite a bit of ball for the Tiffins of the Ohio State league," he retorts.

* * *

"I am much interested in what you say," I tell him, "because this baseball is right up my alley and I am always glad to see good relationships in the national pastime. Just what relationship do you hold with this big Lee Stuckman?"

"I am not sure for certain," Carl responds, 'but my grandmother was a Stuckman and up to now I find that I am related to all the Stuckmans, in one way and another, that I ever hear about.

"And if the price is right," he goes on, "I am willing to place a small wager that Lee Stuckman is my cousin, maybe a second cousin or a third cousin or some sort of a cousin."

* * *

"I am very sorry to hear this, my friend," I tell Carl. "Because I understand that if there is anything a pitcher of baseball does not like to be to anybody it is a cousin."

"I understand what you mean," says Carl, catching on very quickly. "Because usually people, and especially baseball players, who have pitchers for cousins are very ant to ram that baseball down the pitcher's throat, or slam it to all corners of the lot, or even paste it outside the park on occasion.

"And I can see where a pitcher who is a cousin will not like this sort of treatment on the part of his relatives."

"Yes," I agree, "this is a very sad state of affairs and shouldn't happen in the worst of families. It is very likely to put the whammo on the best relationships, although I do not think that cousins are always the best of relationships whether you are a pitcher or not.

"And if I am you," I caution him, "I do not say anything at all to this big Lee Stuckman about cousins. Pitchers have been known at times to do their cousins in, in a quiet but ghastly way, if and when they catch them out alone.

"No," I tell him, "If I am you I do not mention this relationship business in any way to big Lee Stuckman. But if you think you must, I would advise changing it to uncle or some such like. I understand for many years now that uncles are jovial persons who sell schnapps and provide other entertainment for congenial customers.

"Furthermore this kind of an uncle often has a bouncer around to take care of persons who do not like this form of relationship, and so the uncle is not living in fear of bodily harm at unforeseen moments.

"But you are too good a guy to be running around with bouncers at your right hand, so maybe you'd better forget the uncle business, too.

"Maybe you'd better forget the relationship altogether. Relations are often people who try to put the bite on you for a few potatoes when they are short of that commodity. Personally I do not go looking for relations unless I am short of potatoes.

"Maybe you had better just say 'Hi Lee' the next time you see this big Lee Stuckman, and let it go at that."

* * *

"I see what you mean," says Carl, sadly. And I see at once that he is the sort of guy who likes his relations, even if they are cousins who are pitchers.

Four Bob Fellers Needed

Tribe Hasn't Won Without Him Since May 24.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — The last time the Indians won a ball game without Bob Feller was May 24th against St. Louis.

Since that date the ace fireballer has notched three victories to run his season total to 11. With the rest of his pitching staff coming apart at the seams, Manager Roger Peckinpaugh called on Bob today to make it an even dozen.

* * *

Philadelphia's Athletics, currently the hottest team in the American league, provided the opposition and sent Johnny Babrich to the hill for the opener of a four-contest series.

Cleveland, which still leads the league by 13 percentage points, has played only one game since Feller beat New York last Monday. Everyone around here is trying to forget that one.

It happened yesterday. Boston's sluggers, worn out from blasting 16 hits, staggered off the field with a 14 to 1 victory.

Al Milnar started on the mound for the Indians and lasted not quite three innings. The Red Sox continued batting practice against Joe Heving and Cal Dorsett. Ken Jungels escaped the fury of the Boston batsmen — probably because he pitched only the ninth and the visitors were hit-weary by that time.

The Indians collected only six safe blows off the southpaw slants of Mickey Harris. Cleveland pushed over its sole run in the eighth on two walks, Jeff Heath's single and an error.

Philadelphia plays a single game here tomorrow and a doubleheader Sunday.

Recognition already has been given the Philadelphia Athletics as a late-blooming miracle of the spring, but the A's should move over to make room for the Boston Red Sox.

Joe Cronin's gilt-edged American leaguers have done a lot of aimless wandering, some of it in the second division, since winning five in a row at the start of the season.

Just nine days ago they slipped to sixth place, the mighty Jimmy Foxx benched himself because of a hitting slump, and the future was clouded with uncertainty.

* * *

Yet today they are up in third place with a brand-new five-game winning streak and are only three games behind the pace-making Cleveland Indians, whom they crushed yesterday, 14-1.

* * *

The Detroit Tigers took a ragged 5-4 decision from the New York Yankees in 10 innings.

The St. Louis Browns sent Luke Sewell off to a good start as manager by whipping the Washington Senators, 4-2, for a sweep of their three-game series.

Rain washed out the National league program.

WE WANT GAMES, LIBERTIES SHOUT

"We want games," says Dewey Durant, manager of the Liberty park baseball club, and particularly we want a game for this Sunday. Get us games."

Dewey explained the Liberties will gladly play on home-and-home basis with any team in surrounding communities, particularly Ontario, Lucas Bellville and Shelby Settlement.

Tygers Lose 19 Athletes

Loss Well Scattered Among High Teams.

There were 19 athletes among the Mansfield High school seniors who stepped up last night for their piece of parchment, but so well divided were they among the school's different athletic squads that their parting will mean no great blow to any one of the Tyger teams of next school year.

* * *

Outstanding among the graduating athletes are Bruce McGinty and Dick Burkholder, who doubled in basketball and track, Martin Henke, football fullback, Don Hipp and Bob Yarmon, distance stars of the track team and George Davis, captain of the district championship golf team, the only Tyger title-holders of the year.

Other athletes who donned the cap and gown for last night's ceremonies included: Walter Keeler and Gene Emmer, basketball; Joe Horvath, Earl Garnes, Bob Lantz, Charles Grossman and Bob Mabee, football; Bill Abele, Larry Bergstrom and Ray Oberholtzer, track; Jim Gorman and Bob Saltzgaber, swimming and Al Young, wrestling.

According to the best available dope from the Tyger coaching staff, McGinty is the only one of this group of athletes who appears definitely headed toward any particular college. High-boy Bruce, who should do some one a lot of good as a bucketball center when he gets his growth, is reportedly on speaking terms with Miami.

Dick Burkholder, an outstanding leader in the senior class, who acted as sports editor of the school paper the first semester, and won the student athletic award, is reported in line for a scholarship.

Mansfield Provident Loans Defeat Ashland Club 4 to 1

Provident Loan girls beat the Provident Loan girls 4 to 1 in a softball game last evening, and this time it was the state champion Mansfield club showing their playmates from Ashland how the game should be played.

* * *

LaVonna Shaefer did the hurling for the Mansfielders, holding Ashland to one lone hit, a triple by her mound rival, Heckman.

* * *

Schaef fanned five and gave four bases on balls, while Heckman fanned two and issued two passes.

Jean Herrick led the Mansfield offense with two blows in three trips, while the other three hits were collected by Holda, Jocha and Winters.

The Mansfield club travels to Elyria Sunday.

Newman School Wins Loop Title

Newman beat Bowman school 12 to 10 yesterday in the final tilt of the grade school softball struggle to win the championship of the league with a record of seven won and one lost.

* * *

Bowman and Western were runners-ups with records of six won and two lost.

* * *

Poth and Wharton sparkled for Newman as each got three hits in three times at bat.

Reynolds of Bowman sparked the losers with three hits in four times at bat. He was ably seconded by Christ who took three out of three offerings for hits.

NOVA FAVORED OVER JIMMY ROBINSON

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—(INS — Lou Nova, already well advanced in a remarkable comeback, steps in as a heavy favorite tonight against handsome Jimmy Robinson of Philadelphia in a scheduled 10 round fight that may be his last before he throws his mysterious "cosmic" punch at Joe Louis next September.

It's Nova's third fight since a combination of Tony Galento's pudgy fists and a blood infection laid him low last winter.

Rain Hampers Brown Drive

Findlay Can't Gain While Standing Idle.

LIMA —(AP)— Rain hampered Findlay's efforts to over-haul front-running Tiffin in the Ohio State baseball league race this week.

Except for a single game, a three-day program was washed out with the result that standings changes were minor.

* * *

Fremont, continuing to improve, holds undisputed possession of third place while Fostoria and Mansfield have been battling for the top of second division.

The Lima Pandas lost three straight, including the season's longest game, a 13-inning session with Findlay, and dropped further into the basement.

The six clubs have reduced their rosters to 15 players, in compliance with a league ruling, but indications point to a few clubs, particularly Lima, making several changes next week. Three pitchers, an infielder and an outfielder are scheduled to report shortly to Manager Otis Brannan of the Pandas in hope of lifting last year's champions out of the cellar.

Fostoria has sold Pitcher Virgil Feeney, big righthander, to Washington and the hurler will report to the Senators' Springfield, Mass., farm in the Class A Eastern league. He formerly starred in athletics at Defiance college.

Braves Split Even With Fremont Hose

Umpires Have Bad Night, Oust Alex Clowson and Graf Moore From Game

Mansfield Braves split even with the Fremont Green Sox in the first Ohio State league doubleheader of the season at the Fairground last night, with the second game developing into a near riot and some very unpleasant moments for the guessing gentlemen in blue.

Pat Patterson hurled four-hit ball and fanned 13 Sox in the opener to give the Braves a 5 to 1 decision, and break a losing streak that had extended to four games.

Chuck Byers also started out on a strike-out splurge in the second game, setting down seven Fremont hitters by the whiff route in the first three innings. Then the Sox bats, silenced all evening, came to life in a fence rattling exhibition such as hasn't been seen here all season, and Fremont took the nightcap 7 to 3.

* * *

So well in front were the Braves in the opener that the umpires had little difficulty, although Manager Chappie Geygan registered several kicks as usual.

But the second tilt brought out the wolves, and with good reason.

With Mangan on first and one out in the fourth, Graf Moore rolled deep to short, forcing Tim at second. Second Baseman Hawkins' throw to first plainly arrived after Moore had crossed the bag by two steps, but Umpire Rohl called it a double play.

Moore and Manager Alex Clowson protested long and loud, and they report that Rohl even admitted at the time he might have been wrong, and that after the game he admitted he was wrong. But that didn't prevent him, whether as an alibi for his error or not, from kicking Moore and Clowson out of the ball game, and later out of the park.

* * *

Meanwhile Geygan was protesting vigorously on occasion on Umpire Ward's calling of balls and strikes, and the fact that Geygan was permitted to remain in the game did not sit at all well with the fans.

So when the game was over, there were about 200 fans waiting to tell the umpires just what they thought of them and their ancestors. The umpires were escorted to the club office by police.

Mansfield took a three-run lead in the first inning of the opener, and Patterson coasted to victory, allowing the Sox one hit and one run in the second frame, one hit in the sixth, and one each in the

Par Holds Terrors For Pros

Denny Shute Only Golfer To Crack It In Open.

By WILLIAM T. RIVES

FORT WORTH, Tex.—(AP)—Battered in the opening round, pursuers of the national open golf championship staggered through the ropes today for another tussle with Colonial club's par.

* * *

All alone stood quiet little Denny Shute, sole man to master the course. Shute, two-time winner of the P. G. A. championship, carved a 36-33—69 to beat par 35-35—70 in yesterday's first round.

Overlooked by selectors who left him a 20-1 shot, Shute found the links a friend because of his monotonously straight game.

Only two players equalled par—Vic Ghezzi and lanky E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, with identical scores of 35 on each nine.

Bunched behind the leaders with 71's were Gene Kunes of Philadelphia, former Canadian open champion; Harold (Jug) McSpaden; Lawson Little, defending champion; Dick Metz, and Jack Ryan of Louisville, Ky.

* * *

Sharing 72's were Henry Ransom, local pride; Clayton Heafner; Amateur Harry Todd of Dallas; Bunny Torpey of Dodson, Mo.; Ted Kroll of New Hartford, N. Y.; Bill Kaiser of Louisville, Ky., and Johnny Morris of Tuscaloosa, Ala.

* * *

The rest of the field sagged. Byron Nelson, Paul Runyan, Horton Smith, Craig Wood, Lloyd Mangrum and Chick Herbert were among the 73 shooters.

Ben Hogan, Gene Sarazen and Ed Dudley checked in with 74; John Bulla, Tony Penna and Jimmy Demaret, 75; Sam Snead, Johnny Goodman and Billy Burke, 76, and Henry Picard, 77.

Ralph Guldahl, who sprinted in as a hot favorite in the final days before the tourney started, had a sad 79. Lloyd Gullickson of Hartville, O., had an 80.

* * *

Today's round was to eliminate all but the low 60 scores and ties. Tomorrow comes the climactic 36-hole finals.

* * *

Because of yesterday's soaring scores, the consensus among pros was that 286 would win. A record-breaking opening day crowd of 8,000 watched the play.

PUB-LINKS DISTRICT QUALIFIER CARDED

Qualifying rounds for the national public links amateur championship for the northeastern Ohio district, which includes Mansfield, will be held at Highland Park golf course, Cleveland, June 29, it was announced today by Edward C. Knuth, district member of the public links committee of the United States Golf association.

* * *

Entry fee for the qualifier will be $2, and entries must be mailed to Knuth at 880 East 72nd street, Cleveland, on or before next Monday.

* * *

The national championships will be held at Indian Canyon course, Spokane, Wash., the week of July 14.

Braves Split Double Bill

eighth and ninth. The first two hits off Pat were doubles by Sprys and Oddo.

Bill Salem and Eddie Mutryn led the Braves' attack with two hits each in four trips, Salem getting the only extra-base blow for Mansfield, a double high on the green of the scoreboard.

The Braves also stepped away in front in the second tilt when Bob TeStruth, leading off in the first inning, smacked a line drive to center field that bounced past the gardener and rolled to the wall for a home run inside the park.

* * *

This was the last Mansfield hit until the sixth when four hits produced two markers, and in the meantime Fremont put together two doubles, a walk, and a home run over the right-center field fence by Gerken for three runs in the fourth.

They came back with a run on a double steal in the sixth, and three more in the seventh on three doubles and a single.

Bender Takes Two Matches

Captures Pair of Gold Medals In Rifle Meet.

Results of the North Central Ohio .30 Calibre Rifle matches were announced today by L. A. Arntz, .30 calibre director of the Ohio Rifle and Pistol association.

Lloyd Bender won two gold medals in the off-hand shooting at 200 yards as well as capping the award in the 300 yard free rifle competition.

* * *

He was closely pushed by William Schaad, who took the final match with a total score of 226, in the shooting between high joint men, and who also took the 300 yard slow-fire medal.

L. A. Arntz, director, won the rapid fire shooting at 200 and 300 yards with a total of 93.

Slugging Millers Climb Into First

(By Associated Press)

The Minneapolis Millers, who as a team have been clouting American association pitching at a merry .300 clip, woke up in first place today by a single percentage point.

But it wasn't slugging that got them there.

* * *

They made only 12 hits in two games last night and their best extra base efforts were two doubles. However, most of the blows were timely and brought them 2 to 1 and 6 to 3 victories over Indianapolis.

Meanwhile Kansas City's erstwhile pace setters fell victim in a single game to Columbus and Pitcher Johnny Grodzicki, who fanned 12 in winning, 7 to 1.

At Louisville, Art Parks' home run and Tex Hughson's pitching enabled the Colonels to win, 4 to 3.

Milwaukee beat out Toledo, 4-3.

THEATERS

Topper Thriller.

"Topper Returns," Thorne Smith's latest opus to reach the screen, furnishes Ohio theater audiences with more thrills per reel than any of the "Topper" predecessors. Wisecracking Joan Blondell is the ghost in this production and she takes Roland Young as Cosmo Topper on a merry chase to find her murderer. Billie Burke as Topper's fluttery wife, Carole Landis, H. B. Warner and Dennis O'Keefe are in the cast. "The Seeing Eye," an educational short, pictures the training of dogs to lead the blind.

Tingling Mystery.

The strange events which follow a mad scientist's transformation of a normal human being into a super-charged monster make "Man Made Monster," at the Madison a spine-tingling experience. Lon Chaney, jr., plays the monster and Lionel Atwill, the scientist. Frank Albertson and Anne Nagel provide the romantic interest. "Horror Island," the second picture with Leo Carrillo and Dick Foran, deals with a week-end treasure hunt to a one-time pirate hide-out.

Shatters Record.

"Tobacco Road," the hardy perennial that shattered theatrical history with a steady run of eight years, gave Charley Grapewin his first big role on the screen and a long-term contract that he turned down. Grapewin was a "natural" for the role of Jeeter Lester, the tobacco-chewing sharecropper, around whom the story revolves. Marjorie Rambeau, Gene Tierney, Ward Bond, Slim Summerville and Elizabeth Patterson are others in the cast at the Ritz.

Jeanne Kelly Here.

Jeanne Kelly, currently featured at the Park in "Meet the Chump," spoke only Spanish until she was nine, and returned to the United States from Costa Rica to attend school. She was taken to Central America when a babe in arms and grew up in a household where Spanish, French and German were spoken. Now she's one of the charmers in Hugh Herbert's starring comedy about a wacky guardian who appropriates funds from his nephew's estate. Dorothy Darrell and Ann Nagel are in the cast.

Arson Action.

Breaking up on arson ring furnishes Jack Holt with action in "The Great Swindle" showing at the Majestic. As an insurance adjuster Holt struggles against the ring which fires huge warehouses and other property to collect insurance. Jonathan Hale as the warehouse owner and Henry Kolker in the role of a banker support Holt. The cast also includes Tom Kennedy, Sidney Blackmer and Marjorie Reynolds. "The Devil's Pipeline," with Richard Arlen and Andy Devine is the second feature.

Serving more healthful

Vitamins and minerals essential to radiant health are naturally present in the foods you buy... don't let improper cooking cause unnecessary waste of these vital food values. Authorities recommend these simple rules to prevent needless loss of vital food values:

USE LITTLE OR NO WATER. START FAST, COOK QUICKLY. AVOID VIOLENT BOILING. USE COVERED UTENSILS TO EXCLUDE AIR AND DON'T STIR UNNECESSARILY.

Get all the facts about this easy "recipe" for more delicious and more healthful meals.

Whether it's baking, roasting, broiling or surface cooking, you can depend on an ELECTRIC RANGE to give you exactly the results you want . . . QUICKLY . . . SIMPLY AND EASILY. They are as fast as fire without the flame, and you'll enjoy more free time.

NO SMOKE...NO SOOT...NO GRIME...ELECTRIC COOKING IS AS CLEAN AS ELECTRIC LIGHT

Electric cooking is clean cooking... clean as electric light! You get only fast, pure heat when you turn the switch on an Electric Range. Curtains and walls stay fresh and clean. Pots and pans stay bright and new looking. New Electric Ranges are easy to purchase and cost much less than you think to operate.

Go to your Electric Range dealer and let him show you the advanced features of 1941 Electric Ranges. He will show you the advantages of CLEAN, SAFE, EASY ELECTRIC COOKING. Check the values he has to offer and you will agree that now is the time to change to Electric Cooking.

SAVE AN HOUR EVERY WASHDAY!

NO WAITING FOR HOT WATER WITH A WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC WATER HEATER

Your wash on the line earlier, gleaming proudly white, when you have plenty of the really HOT water authorities recommend for easier, better laundering. No need to spend time and energy boiling white things. No need to wait for hot water, nor to waste time heating more.

Just turn the faucet—when you have a Westinghouse—and get all the 150 degree HOT water you want, when you want it — AUTOMATICALLY! There's always plenty at the right temperature for all your needs—without the least fuss, bother or worry.

YOUR DREAMS COME TRUE

Hurry! Buy Your Electric Range or Electric Water Heater Before June 20th . . . YOU MAY WIN EITHER ABSOLUTELY FREE . . . . .

Here's All You Need Do . . . Read Every Word

Any person living on the lines of the Mansfield Division of The Ohio Public Service Company who purchases an electric range or electric water heater from the Mansfield Division of The Ohio Public Service Company, during the period beginning May 22nd to June 20th, 1941, inclusive, will have the opportunity of obtaining the range or water heater he has purchased FREE OF COST AND ANY AMOUNT PAID AT THE TIME OF PURCHASE WILL ALSO BE REFUNDED.

The rules of the contest are simple. The purchaser presenting the best last line to the limerick appearing in the box to the left will be declared the winner. A judging committee composed of electrical dealers of Mansfield will make the decision and their decision will be final.

Providing the limerick you submit is judged the winner, and you have purchased an electric range but would prefer to receive a 52-gallon electric water heater as a prize you have that privilege.

Or if you have purchased an electric hot water heater and choose to select an electric range you may select any model on display with a retail value not to exceed $149.95.

Protect Vitamins, Minerals, and Rich, Natural Flavors In the Food You Serve Your Family

Switch to VITAmized COOKing with Westinghouse

BECAUSE—Vegetables are cooked in little or no water. Healthful vitamins and minerals are not "boiled out" and poured down the sink.

BECAUSE—Fast, intense "HIGH" heat brings vegetables to steaming point quickly. Vitamins and minerals are not exposed to heat, water and air any longer than necessary.

BECAUSE—Evenly distributed heat . . . always exactly the right amount . . . keeps vegetables cooking gently. Violent boiling is avoided . . . needless loss of vitamins and minerals prevented.

BECAUSE—Cooking in covered utensils without stirring, keeps out vitamin-destroying air . . . protects health-building properties of fods.

BECAUSE—Roasting and baking in odorless, draftless heat protects rich natural flavors. Meats shrink less . . . retain more nutritive juices.

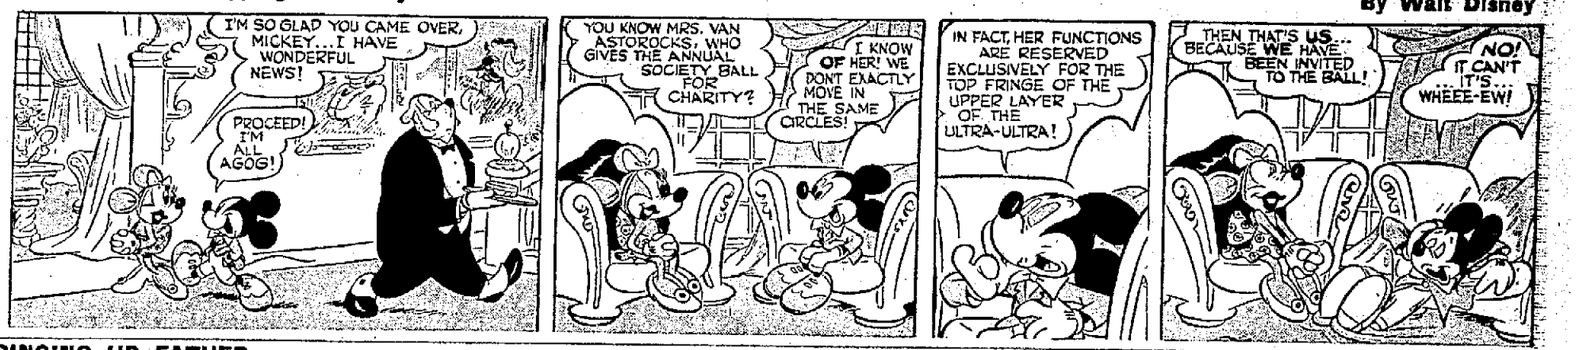
MICKEY MOUSE— Stepping In Sassiety. By Walt Disney



I'M SO GLAD YOU CAME OVER, MICKEY... I HAVE WONDERFUL NEWS!
PROCEED! I'M ALL AGOG!
YOU KNOW MRS. VAN ASTOROCKS, WHO GIVES THE ANNUAL SOCIETY BALL FOR CHARITY?
I KNOW OF HER! WE DON'T EXACTLY MOVE IN THE SAME CIRCLES!
IN FACT, HER FUNCTIONS ARE RESERVED EXCLUSIVELY FOR THE TOP FRINGE OF THE UPPER LAYER OF THE ULTRA-ULTRA!
THEN THAT'S US... BECAUSE WE HAVE BEEN INVITED TO THE BALL!
NO! IT CAN'T BE... IT'S... WHEEE-EW!

GOODNESS — I HAVE SIX QUEENS —
WELL — I MUST SAY — THIS IS STRANGE — ONE HAS TO BE CAREFUL WITH WHOM THEY PLAY POKER —
MRS. JIGGS — I'VE A SUSPICION THIS GAME IS CROOKED —
BUT — MY DEAR —
WHAT'S THE MATTER?
I'VE LOST ALL MY FRIENDS — THEY'VE ACCUSED ME OF USING A CROOKED DECK OF CARDS —

GAINS IN STEEL STEADY TONE OF STOCK MARKET

Operators Find No News To Sway Them From Their Stand-By Positions.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—(AP)—Small gains among some of the steels lent a steady tone to the stock market today.

Operators found no news developments to sway them from their stand-by position.

Among the shares holding fairly steady or advancing were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Consolidated Aircraft, American Telephone, Western Union and Kennecott.

Two banking reports were of interest to boardrooms. One was the federal reserve bank report of a decrease of $548,000,000 last week from the previous week in the reserve balances of member banks. The other was a gain in bank clearings in 23 leading cities of nearly 44 per cent last week over the late 1940 week.

Mayor Announces Petitions Being Circulated; Denies Quarrel With Director.

erday that he had not obtained ny petition, he stated today that e had the petition for several days ut had only started to get signers ast night. He said that he would ot file the petition until late next week.

In relation to rumors that he was planning to replace Crafton, the mayor took the attitude that the reports were instigated by political enemies and were of a "fifth column" nature.

"I believe that Crafton and I have had a minimum of dissension," said the mayor. "I have the utmost confidence in Crafton and I hope that he has the same in me."

The mayor is the first person to declare himself a candidate for that office. The name of E. P. Long, former Richland county sheriff, has been mentioned prominently in Democratic circles. Another new Democratic name to be considered was that of Glenn Davidson, city treasurer.

No plans for definite campaign action were outlined by Locke today.

"I withheld my decision, partly because I feel that after such an announcement is made that a man becomes nothing more than another candidate," the mayor stated. "I am also opposed to long campaigns and will not make any effort along this line for quite a while."

Registrations For Children's Theater to Close.

Final registration for the Children's theater, sponsored by the Community Players, will be held Saturday at the Mansfield Public library between 10 a. m. and 12 noon, Mrs. Robert Beatty, committee member, announced today.

Started two years ago the Children's theater affords young people between the ages of six to 17 with an eight weeks' course in stage technique and the opportunity of appearing in several plays.

Directed for the third season by Harold McCuen, the group this year will present three major productions and weekly workshop plays.

Classes will be held four days a week, Monday through Thursday, for an eight-week period.

Two scholarships will be given this year, one to children in the six to 13-year group and another to juveniles in the 13 to 17-year group. Auditions will be held for the scholarships prior to the start of the classes.

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Executive Board — The Community Fund executive board will meet Monday at 7:30 p. m. in the Chamber of Commerce rooms.

Grotto to Meet — Members of Baku Grotto will meet tonight at Grotto hall, King building, Frank J. May, monarch, said today.

Red Cross Meeting — The executive board of the Richland county chapter of the Red Cross will meet Tuesday at 4:30 p. m. at executive headquarters.

Meeting—Hermit club members will meet Monday evening at the Possum Run Golf club, Dr. Harry Knox, president, announced today. Members will play golf before dinner at 7 p. m.

Check Minor Blaze—Mansfield firemen were called out twice yesterday, once to check a minor roof fire at the home of J. S. Eberly, 551 West Townview circle, and later for a false alarm. The fire at the Eberly home started when shingles near the chimney caught fire. Little damage was caused, according to firemen.

Hold Picnic Tuesday — Members of the Richland County Young Democratic club will hold a picnic at 6:30 p. m. Tuesday at Oak park on U. S. route 30, east of Mansfield. The club will furnish coffee, but members must bring the food, Thomas Hoffman, chairman of the committee, said. He added that transportation will be provided from Mansfield if members without cars report to him at the courthouse.
